State to cut Kindergarten funding

School Committee prepares response as Governor's budget could cost Wilmington big bucks

By BRENDAN FOLEY

WILMINGTON- The Wilmington school committee is preparing to go to battle for full-day kindergarten, as Governor Charlie Baker's proposed budget would threaten crucial grants needed to keep the program operation. The school committee and Superintendent Mary DeLai have begun drawing up plans to combat these cuts, and are hoping for community support in the effort.

Baker's proposed budget would cut the full-day kindergarten grant program, a program designed to assist with "enhancing the quality of inclusive full-day kindergarten classrooms to meet the needs of all children, including children with disabilities and those from diverse cultural, economic, and linguistic backgrounds," per the grant description on the Department of Education website.

In a presentation to the committee at Wednesday's school committee meeting, committee member MJ Byrnes opined that Baker's budget proposal was "very detrimental to public education in a number of ways."

Byrnes stated that if Baker's cuts are allowed to go through, the Wilmington school system would need to find $132,000 to support kindergarten programs. She attributed the governor's off-base calculations to using an out-of-date formulation for determining cost-per-pupil, a fixed cost that has not changed in 20 years of economic shifts.

WILMINGTON - Two pedestrians were struck by a car Saturday morning, while walking in the area of Woburn St. and Verdun Road.

Deputy Chief Robert Richter told the Crier that a 50-year-old female Woburn resident hit the pedestrians at about 8:40 am. There were no apparent signs of alcohol or drug use. The roads were wet, possibly contributing to the crash.

About six police cruisers arrived on the scene as well as the Fire Department and Emergency Medical Technicians. The two pedestrians were transported to Lahey Clinic in Burlington with serious injuries. Chief Richter was not sure if the victims were wearing reflective gear.

The roads were shut down until around 1:00 pm.

No charges have been filed as the incident remains under investigation with the State Police Crash Analysis Division.

WILMINGTON

Selectman Michael Champoux is running for Selectman for the third time. The incumbent will be running against last minute candidate Kevin MacDonald, squaring off in a debate on Tuesday, April 7th to be televised at Wilmington's local station WCTV.

Champoux, who has been a resident for nearly 18 years, said of his experience on the Board, "The first three years, I spent mostly learning, listening and watching, and through that experience, gained skills, confidence and aptitude for what it means to be a Selectman," adding, "I found my voice, and how to articulate myself, and developed respect among members and colleagues as a bonafide leader. I feel good about that."

When asked why he is running again, Champoux told the Crier, "First and foremost because I want to be an example. Everyone has to do something," and added, the importance of being involved, "I want to see the community's young people getting involved, and to understand it's not a free ride."

The Crier asked about accomplishments that have been made in the past year. Champoux said he is happy to see that the Wilmington High School has "come into fruition." He is also excited about the Yentile Farm project, the majority of which is slated to be completed in the spring of 2016 with more plantings planned for 2017. One of the best accomplishments, Champoux said, is the acquisition of the Ristuccia Arena, which was voted to go through at the Special Town Meeting back in December of 2014.

Speaking of the acquisition, Champoux told the Crier, "I am very proud to be a part of that process. It defines who we are as a town."

When asked about what kind of changes he might like to see in the Town, Champoux said, "What I would like to see is more of a greater involvement by the folks in the community." He stressed the importance of being interested in local civics saying, "We need to encourage people to participate in local government and giving back."

Champoux spoke in reference to some of the more contentious moments that have recently occurred in meetings with the Board, and said, "We want to be an example. There are young people who attend.

Heroin arrest in Wilmington

WOBURN - Two Woburn brothers, one of whom was the source of heroin that led to a fatal overdose last year, were arrested in East Woburn late Thursday after they allegedly picked up a batch of drugs from their supplier in Wilmington.

David D. Stellberger, 27, 31 South Bedford St.; and William Stellberger, 24, 131 Pleasant St., were charged with possession of a class A substance with the intent to distribute, possession of a class A substance, and conspiracy to violate the controlled substance laws.

David Stellberger was held on $500 bail, pending arraignment in Woburn District Court, while William Stellberger was held on $250 bail.

Police with the Woburn Vice/Narcotics unit and the Southern Middlesex Regional Drug Task Force have been investigating the brothers. David was arrested on Oct. 28, and William is allegedly the dealer who sold heroin that led to a pair of drug overdoses, one of which was fatal. Investigators also reported David is dealing heroin to high school students.

On Thursday, undercover officers surveilled the brothers as they left Pleasant Street in their mother's car and headed north on Route I-93, where they apparently met their supplier off an exit in Wilmington. Police continued to follow the suspects as they drove back to Woburn, and pulled over their car near the intersection of Washington Street and Montvale Avenue in East Woburn.

William Stellberger told officers he bought drugs but snorted them on the ride back to Woburn and threw the bag out the window. Police located in the vehicle a straw with heroin residue and a digital scale, which is used in the distribution of heroin.

A search of the suspects revealed William was holding 7.3 grams on heroin packaged for distribution.

The arrests were logged at 9:25 p.m. on Thursday. Investigating officers from Woburn included Det. Angelo Piazza, Det. Sgt. Brian McManus, and officers Kylee Lally and Erik Hill.

Marathon bombing jurors see autopsy photos

The prosecution & defense rests

DENISE LAVOIE,
AP Legal Affairs Writer

BOSTON (AP) —

This week prosecutors and attorneys for Boston Marathon bomber Dzhokhar Tsarnaev both rested their cases.

Prosecutors and Tsarnaev's lawyers will give closing arguments April 6. The jury is expected to begin deliberations the same day.

Prosecution Rests

Prosecutors rested their case against Boston Marathon bomber Dzhokhar Tsarnaev on Monday after jurors in his federal death penalty trial saw gruesome autopsy photos and heard a medical examiner describe the devastating injuries suffered by an 8-year-old boy killed in the 2013 terror attack.

Prosecutors ended their case on an emotional note. At least three jurors cried and wiped their eyes with tissues as they looked at photos of 8-year-old Martin Richard, who went to watch the marathon with his parents and siblings on April 15, 2013, and was killed when the second of two bombs exploded near the finish line.

The boy's parents watched somberly from the second row of the courtroom. Bill Richard kept his arm around the shoulder of his wife, Denise, throughout the testimony.

Dr. Henry Nields, chief medical examiner for Massachusetts, said Martin received injuries to virtually every part of his body, including lacerations of his liver, left kidney and spleen, broken bones and third-degree burns. His stomach was also ruptured.

Nields said he removed small nails, metal pellets, fragments of wood and black plastic from the boy's wounds. He also displayed the blood-stained, shredded clothing that Martin was wearing when the bomb exploded.

Tsarnaev's lawyers began their defense by quickly trying to show that his older brother was the mastermind of the plan to detonate pressure-cooker bombs near the finish line of the famous race.

One of the first witnesses called by the defense was a data analyst who said Tsarnaev's cellphone was being used in southeastern Massachusetts — where he was attending college — while pressure cookers were being purchased north of Boston more than two months before the bombing. The analyst also testified that large quantities of BBs were purchased a little over a month before the attack in two Wal-Mart stores in New Hampshire, at a time when Tsarnaev's cellphone was again being used near UMass-Dartmouth.

The defense has made it clear from the first day of testimony on March 4 — when his lawyer admitted he participated in the bombings — that their strategy is not to win an acquittal but to save Tsarnaev from the death penalty by arguing that his brother, Tamerlan, was largely responsible for the bombings.

Defense Rests

The first defense witness was Michelle Gamble, an FBI field photographer who testified earlier Monday for prosecutors, describing various photos and a video showing the scene of the second blast both before and shortly after the explosions.

In one of the photos, Martin Richard, his sister and several other children stand on a metal barricade. Tsarnaev appears to be just a few feet behind Martin and his sister.

While cross-examining Gamble, Tsarnaev's lawyers showed other photographs with several people in between Tsarnaev and the children, an apparent attempt to show that Tsarnaev didn't purposefully target them with the bomb.

When the defense called Gamble as its first witness, Tsarnaev's lawyer, Miriam Conrad, asked her about a book titled "Wiring" that was found during a search of the Tsarnaev family's apartment in Cambridge. Gamble said the book was found under the living room couch.

Tsarnaev's lawyers have tried to show that he was not living in the apartment when the bombings occurred because he was attending college. Tamerlan Tsarnaev, 26, was living in the apartment with his wife and their young daughter.

Lawyers for Boston Marathon bomber Dzhokhar Tsarnaev rested their case in his federal death penalty trial Tuesday, a day after they began presenting testimony designed to show his late older brother was the mastermind of the 2013 terror attack.

The defense has made it clear from the beginning of the trial that its strategy is not to win an acquittal for Tsarnaev, now 21, but to save him from the death penalty.

During its brief case, the defense called four witnesses, including a cell site analyst who showed that Tsarnaev was at the University of Massachusetts-Dartmouth when Tamerlan purchased components of the two bombs used in the attack, including pressure cookers and BBs.

On Tuesday, an FBI fingerprint examiner testified that Dzhokhar's fingerprints weren't found on any of the marathon bomb components, but Tamerlan's were.

Elaina Graff said Tamerlan's prints were detected on two pieces of cardboard that came from one of the bombs used at the marathon and on a piece of paper found inside a backpack used to carry a bomb.

Graff said prints belonging to both brothers were found on another bomb recovered from the scene of a gunbattle with police days after the marathon attack. That bomb, which was not detonated, consisted of explosive powder and fuses packed inside a plastic container with a fuse protruding from the lid.

While being cross-examined by Assistant U.S. Attorney William Weinreb, Graff said it can be difficult to find fingerprints at bombing sites. "Due to the extreme temperature and force in an explosion, it is not unusual to not find fingerprints on items," Graff said.

Also testifying for the defense Tuesday was a computer expert who said Tamerlan Tsarnaev did Internet searches on bomb components in the weeks before the attack.

Mark Spencer, the president of a digital forensics company, said search terms on Tamerlan's laptop included "detonators," "transmitter and receiver" and "fireworks firing system." He said Dzhokhar Tsarnaev's laptop showed his computer activity focused heavily on Facebook and a Russian version of Facebook.

Tsarnaev's lawyer also told jurors in opening statements that it was Tamerlan who shot and killed Massachusetts Institute of Technology police Officer Sean Collier three days after the bombings.

If the jury convicts Tsarnaev — an event that may be a foregone conclusion because of his admitted guilt — the trial will move on to the second phase, when the same jury will hear more evidence to decide whether Tsarnaev should be put to death or should spend the rest of his life in prison.

Pilot's death ruled a suicide

By LARZ F. NELSON
Editor Emeritus

"August 3 is a good day to die."

That was the suicide note found in the shirt pocket of Alexander Dyko, whose plane crashed in North Wilmington on that day in 1975.

The WWII vintage AT-6 "Texan" trainer came down on a Sunday afternoon at the corner of Lawrence Street and Shady Lane Drive. There were no injuries other than the pilot, who was killed.

Based on that note, medical examiner Dr. Thomas Devlin ruled his death a suicide.

The restored AT-6 was a familiar sight to aircraft watchers in Eastern Massachusetts. It was a two-seat, single-engine plane with a 42-ft. wingspan. Dyko flew out of the Bedford airport.

The Burlington police logged several complaints about the low-flying plane that afternoon. The last log entry at 3:50 p.m. said the plane was headed into Wilmington, and the Wilmington Police Department was notified.

Several Wilmington residents saw the plane and heard it sputtering before the crash. It was seen over Chestnut Street, Town Park, Butters Row and Glen Road before it came down at the end of Lawrence Street.

The plane clipped an oak tree at 69 Lawrence St. and then a large pine tree.

Mario Crescitelli at 65 Lawrence St. said he saw the plane over trees near Sprucewood Road. The motor was erratic. Then it revved up and climbed, heading toward Glen Road. Then it turned to the right, and flew along the Wildcat railroad track, banked, with its left wing high. He said the plane was sputtering, obviously in trouble. Crescitelli said he thought the pilot was attempting to land on the tracks.

"It looked to me like the guy was in trouble, serious trouble, and it looked like he was trying to get out of it," said Crescitelli.

When the plane was behind Crescitelli's house, it started to level off but then the engine cut out with a loud noise and the plane clipped two trees.

It then hit a swimming pool at 45 Shady Lane Dr., bounced across the street, flipped over and landed upside down in the yard of Michael and Joan O'Donoghue, where it demolished two cars. There was a brief fireball, but the house did not catch fire.

If there were any angels at work that afternoon, they were probably in charge of timing. The O'Donoghues had just finished an outdoor cookout, and John Collins had vacated his poolside cot 15 seconds before the plane hit.

A week after the crash, freelance writer Jim Ross submitted an article to the Town Crier, delving into Dyko's record.

Two years earlier, in May 1973, Dyko had his license suspended for careless and reckless operation, flying below 1500 feet, flying below 500 feet and performing acrobatics in a control zone.

Then in July 1974, he was questioned by the National Transportation Safety Board (NTSB) after a fatal plane crash in Newburyport. Witnesses said that two planes had been performing a series of loops, rolls and dives at low altitudes. Donald Ackerman's plane was in the backside of a loop, flying upside down, when it dove into a marsh, about two miles from the Plum Island airport.

When questioned, Dyko, in obscene language, charged the eyewitnesses with jumping to conclusions and confusing motions with acrobatic maneuvers.

He said he saw the other plane in trouble and flew alongside it. He lowered his landing gear and pointed down, trying to get the other pilot to land. He said he then flew ahead and left the area. He said he did not see the other plane crash.

Dyko's AT-6 was the only other plane in the area at the time. The NTSB did not cite him for any responsibility for the crash of the other plane.

IDENTITY THEFT IS STILL AN ISSUE

In last year's tax-filing season, the IRS paid out about $5.2 billion in fraudulent tax refunds, the Government Accountability Office estimates. It seems the IRS is not getting sufficient W-2 data before it issues refunds. (Identity thieves file early, hoping to get refunds before the honest people file returns.)

Current schedules require that paper W-2 forms (only used by firms that issue fewer than 250 W-2s) must be filed by the end of February; electronic filing by larger firms is due at the end of March. The GAO recommends earlier filing dates and having smaller firms file electronically, too.

More: A nationwide phone scam is targeting taxpayers. Callers claiming to be from the IRS tell victims that they owe taxes and must pay up or be jailed. Be aware that the IRS never makes unsolicited calls to discuss taxes or refunds. If you get such a call, notify Treasury inspectors at 800-366-4484. Letters to the editor

A vote for Martinson

Dear Editor,
As someone who is a forth/fifth generation Wilmington resident and now raising my family in Wilmington, I want to give my support and ask everyone to consider Leigh John Martinson for the office of Town Moderator. I believe he is the ideal candidate to seamlessly step into Jim Stewart's shoes.

Leigh is a consummate professional, prepares meticulously for everything he does, possesses the education and background needed and is the only candidate uniquely qualified for this position.

He already gives back tirelessly to the community by coaching our children in three sports while also serving on the Wilmington Youth Hockey Board of Directors and I know he will bring the same dedication as Town Moderator for the next 20 years.

I am confident he will serve our community and its residents with the same passion he shows in everything else he does. Please cast your vote for Leigh John Martinson.

A vote for David Gay

Dear Editor:

It gives me great pride to write about someone near to my heart, not only because he is my husband, but because of his strong work ethic and loyalty to all Tewksbury residents.

David Gay is running for re-election to the Board of Selectmen to continue the work he is so passionate about-making Tewksbury a better place for everyone. In addition to serving on the Board of Selectmen, he is the Selectman Representative on the Lowell Regional Transit Authority (LRTA), helping increase service to Tewksbury. He serves on the Northern Middlesex Council of Governments (NMCOG) as Tewksbury's voice in areas such as flooding, open space, land use, housing, and economic development.

David also currently serves on the Public Events and Celebrations Committee and the Personnel Review board. David previously served on the Economic Development Committee as part of the team that was instrumental in bringing Thermo Fisher to Tewksbury, gaining needed tax revenue. He has served on the Local Housing Partnership, the Metropolitan Planning Organization, High School Building Committee, and Community Preservation Committee. He is also part of the Town Hall Renovation Committee, the result of which you now see underway in our town center.

David goes the extra mile to make sure that residents are heard and their concerns are met. Whether they call him at night, or catch him at an event, David is always ready to listen.

I ask you to please join me in voting on Saturday, April 11, 2015 for David H. Gay, a man of honesty and integrity who always has the residents of Tewksbury's best interests at heart.

Sincerely,

Cheryl Gay

Betsy's Best Bets

Monday on my mind

The well-known, popular holistic health and integrative medicine expert Andrew Weil thinks we should refrain from watching the news for one week out of every month. Dr. Weil feels that the news is agitating and unnerving, therefore bad for our mental health. Actually, one week doesn't seem nearly enough when you consider the intense way in which the news is reported. Reading a newspaper is less unsettling - a more matter-of-fact means of keeping informed.

The local news stations are mainly about hysterical broadcasting of the weather, followed by fires, cars driving into buildings, murder, mayhem, and molestations. And the national news is enough to put the fear of God in you.

So, the question is, how to stay on top of current events without being in a constant state of worry. Being civic-minded requires some basic understanding of the issues but for most of us, our opinions are triggered by emotion rather than by facts.

Back when talk radio was normal, I listened to Gene Burns every day. His show was like sitting in a classroom with a very well-educated, interesting professor who made you think. Many of his positions on political and social issues were new to me. He opened my eyes and actually caused me to reconsider some of my long-held beliefs. How often does that happen? I'd say, not nearly enough - but after all these years, recently it happened again.

The Wilmington Library's Domestic Affairs and Foreign Policy discussion group series has been the most educational and thought-provoking class I've ever attended. At first glance when I noticed the posting at the library, my first thought was, too dry, too academic, maybe even boring - and also a bit intimidating. But my curiosity overrode those thoughts. I signed up for the first session - then the second - and the third, knowing that if the series is offered again (new subjects) I'll be there.

Here are some of the subjects we covered: Privacy, Immigration, Income Inequality, Health Care, Education Reform, Law Enforcement, Election Reform, U.S. Trade Policy, Energy, Israel/Palestine, and more. All of the classes have had a mix of controversy and consensus - lively debate and discussion - and deliberation. What made these classes so engrossing, without a doubt, is the leader of the discussion, or better put, the TEACHER Keith West. Let's see ... how can I describe this young man - mature and strikingly knowledgeable beyond his years, yet able to communicate with and reach each one of us, regardless of background or age. Smart and well-trained just can't explain Keith's ability to keep the class riveted for an hour and a half. Simply watching him is part of the appeal. Here's a big guy, quite tall with a bushy ponytail, agile, animated, demonstrative, pacing around with arms waving, then tilting forward with arms straight out, hands in the praying position, then perched on a table yoga style - while fueling the room with energy and enthusiasm.

By the end of each class, both sides of the issue are apparent. Even if your mind hasn't changed, you can understand why someone else would feel differently. That's a big step for most of us. And because of Keith's extensive knowledge of the subjects, all of us have learned so much. Under his direction, the classroom atmosphere and the interaction with each other are much more conducive to conveying ideas than trying to educate oneself without the opinions of many minds.

Here are the "rules of the room" (and some unwritten rules too). You must raise your hand to speak. Everyone gets recognized in order (no side conversations, please), all comments must be directed to Keith, not to each other, which diffuses emotion or heaven forbid, animosity, when people strongly disagree. No one is ever "put on the spot" - you don't have to participate, you can merely sit and listen and learn (Whew!).

Sometimes the class is completely quiet while pondering a question put to us. Other times there's an outburst reaction that has to be quieted. And best of all, there's humor. Keith has a very funny, quirky sense of humor that keeps the class chuckling. There's joking around and at times some price-less comments.

Not surprisingly, long after the library has closed its doors, many of us are standing in the dark parking lot still debating and yes, arguing - a kind of after-hours friendly free-for-all, as if we can't get enough. Tell me, when was the last time you willingly stood outside at night, in the cold, not in any hurry to get going because the evening had been so stimulating you wanted more?

When I hear talk about libraries becoming obsolete, I flinch. Our public libraries are a lasting bastion of civility, culture, education and enlightenment in an age of social disengagement. They are places to gather and gain knowledge, to spend time alone, browsing, reading, contemplating and being still - and socializing too. The future of libraries, I would hope, is more programs and presentations, more book signings and events and activities - and more! Keith West discussion groups. I can't think of anything else I'd rather do, for the rest of my life, than to show up at the Wilmington Library every Monday night to be educated and entertained - and fired up. Sure beats sitting in front of that television - or worse, staring at a screen, probably checking Facebook, spending precious time, monitoring the monotonous, mundane lives of others.

DEDICATED HUSBAND AND FATHER

Since settling in Wilmington, Leigh obtained a law degree at night while working full time as an engineer and patent agent. Throughout the course of the past decade, Leigh has volunteered as a youth soccer coach, youth lacrosse coach, and youth hockey coach here in Wilmington, while also serving as a member of the Wilmington Youth Hockey Association board of directors. He looks forward to continuing his record of public service by serving as Wilmington's next Town Moderator.

INDEPENDENT AND RESOURCEFUL

Leigh was sworn into the Massachusetts Bar in 2003 at the time when the dotcom bubble burst. Committed to making Wilmington his permanent family home, Leigh commuted from Wilmington to Philadelphia to support his family for nearly a year before working his way back home at a prestigious Boston law firm. Just four years later, Leigh earned a coveted partnership at the firm of McDermott, Will, & Emery LLP in Boston.

Ways to save on Spring Energy Bills

When the temperature rises, you might find your electric and gas bills increase, too. Spring is a great time to try out new ways you can save money on your home utilities—leaving you some extra funds to pay down debt, invest, or even dip towards a summer vacation!

Here are a few simple and inexpensive ways you can trim your spring-weather utility bills, from energy.gov.

Use natural ventilation. If you live in a climate where it's much cooler at night than during the day, turn off your cooling system. You can open the windows and let some fresh air circulate, free of charge.

Be sure to close the windows, blinds, and curtains in the morning to keep the hot sun from raising indoor temperatures. If you want to go one step further, you can learn about how to improve the heat efficiency of your window coverings.

Turn on the fans. Did you know that using a ceiling fan will effectively allow you to set the temperature 4 degrees higher with the same comfort level? Just remember to turn fans off when you leave, since the cooling effect created by the breeze only works for people, not rooms.

It's a good idea to use fans in the bathroom to dissipate heat and humidity as well, and make sure they're ventilated to the outside—not the attic. If you have fans in the laundry room and kitchen, spot ventilation can be very useful for lowering room temperatures.

Watch your thermostat. If you set your temperatures as high as possible when the weather's warm, your air conditioner will turn on less often. Setting your thermostat lower than you normally would when you're hoping to cool a room quickly won't work, either, and it could result in an unnecessary added expense.

Keeping your home warm when you're not there is also a good way to cut unneeded costs without sacrificing comfort. If you don't have programmable thermostat, it's still easy to raise the temperature when you return home.

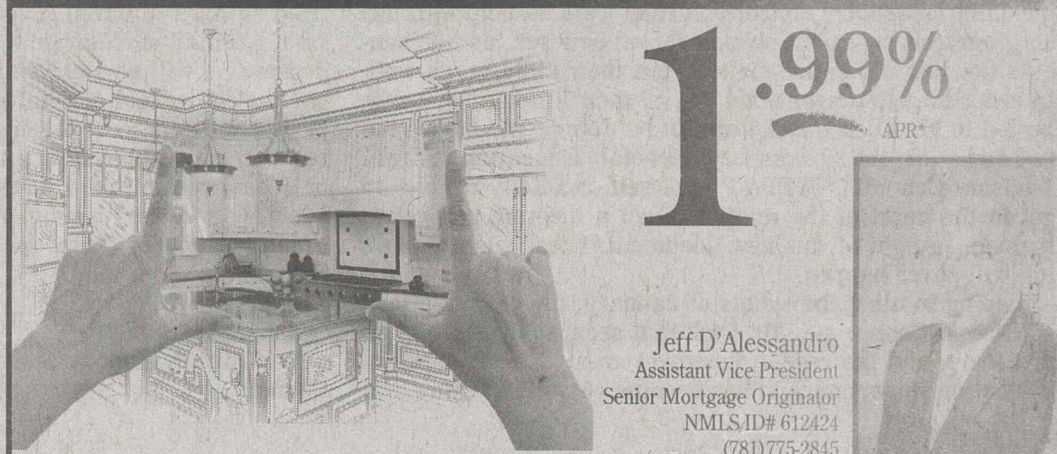

Grill! In warm weather, you can avoid heating your home further by grilling outside. If you leave your hot oven off, you can also use your cooktop or microwave to keep temperatures lower.

Reduce hot water use. If you take shorter showers and only wash full loads of dishes and laundry, you can help reduce heat buildup in your home and save money on your water bill, too. Water heating can cost between 14 percent and 25 percent of the energy use in your home, so turning down the setting to "warm" (120° F) can save you loads, as well as prevent you from scalding your skin!

Use efficient lighting. Only about 10-15 percent of the energy used by incandescent bulbs is converted to light; the rest produces heat. Installing energy-efficient lighting in your home not only lowers heating costs, but electrical use as well. Find out more about efficient lighting here. Turn off the lights when you aren't using them, and use natural lighting whenever possible.

For more information on saving energy costs during warm weather, check out energy.gov's resources.

Guest Op-Ed

Response to documents contained in the School Committee Packet of March 24, 2015

Dear Editor,

I'm still trying to wrap my head around the fact that the district thought it was appropriate to publicly publish a document listing a student (albeit anonymously via a number system), their school (out of district placement), whether they are homeless, whether they passed the MCAS and then ranking the parents on a number scale: 1: cooperative; 2: somewhat cooperative; 3: not cooperative. Using the excuse that it is in response to questions from the Finance Committee falls short in my opinion. I see no value in this information.

Seeing such a document published on the district website, two months after the district was taken to task for indiscriminately blaming out of district placements for not being able to provide a free full day kindergarten program left me speechless. In the light of Dr. O'Connor's full day kindergarten letter, I spent hours on the phone with both Dr. O'Connor and Brian Dick trying to maintain some sort of cohesion between the district and parents with special needs children. I was repeatedly assured that the district fully respects this subset of parents and that insult was not the objective. I continually explained to both Dr. O'Connor and Mr. Dick that that parents of special education learners in this district go above and beyond to try to work, in a non-adversarial, collaborative way with the district. Parents of special education learners want the same thing as all parents do: they want their children to be happy and get the best education possible. Special education parents continually try to understand what obstacles the district is facing, including budgetary concerns. They work to help improve on programming in our schools for all children, as this benefits not just the entire district, but their children as well. In order to help prevent this "us vs. them" mentality, I suggested to Mr. Dick that he and Dr. O'Connor meet with the co-chairs of the Tewksbury Special Education Parent Advisory Council ("TSEPAC") (myself and Kelly Preble) to get to the heart of the matter. Such a meeting has yet to happen. In light of this new document, I fear such a meeting will never happen.

Keeping in mind the events of January; my conversations with Dr. O'Connor and Mr. Dick that seem to have fallen on deaf ears, and the recent document created by the Special Education Department, it has become very clear to me that the neither the district nor the school committee respects the TSEPAC nor the parents of special education learners. The TSEPAC is supposed to work in collaboration with the district. Not once has an administrator or school committee member attempted to reach out to us to discuss budgetary concerns, or any other types of concerns. I think it is very clear, in light of recent events, that the district is not interested in collaborating with the TSEPAC. Coming to this conclusion is very disheartening for me as I had (apparently naively so) always thought that if you were firm, but respectful and willing to listen to all sides, progress could be made - change could happen.

Over the last two years, the TSEPAC has brought in many different speakers, hoping to engage more of the community. From many of these speakers, one common theme emerges: work respectfully and openly with your district. School administrators became involved in education because they care about children. I truly believed this to be the truth. I even repeated it over and over when meeting with distraught parents - the district isn't in the business to be malicious. They truly are working hard, we just need to understand the whole picture in order to help with solutions. Obviously, I am now embarrassed at how naïve and trusting I've been. You cannot tell me that a district that independently creates a document such as the one found in the March 24th School Committee packet, is about working with parents or having the best interest of the child in mind.

Sadly, the district has again recklessly contributed to the breaking down of the bridges that parents in district have tried so hard to build. I for one, will continue to fight for what I think the children in this district, including my own, deserve. I will also continue to try to hold the district, as well as the school committee accountable for their action, or inaction, whatever the case may be. I will do all this with respect, but without faith and trust in school administration or school committee, I have no choice but to. Something I learned at a very young age while growing up on army bases resonates with me today: See Something, Say Something. So I will.

Blanka Kolb
Co-Chair, Tewksbury Special Education Parent Advisory Council

Wilmington / Florida Reunion draws 34

TARPON, FL - It was a sunny day at Howard Park in Tarpon, FL where 34 Wilmington long timers and several new friends met for the 23rd Wilmington / Florida reunion. Most certainly missed were several regulars, but it was inspiring to have several new folks join the clan.

Richard and Zenaida Pellerin were unable to join in the fun this year after many years of preparing and serving delicious strawberry shortcake. They have moved permanently to the Philippines / Guam. Their faithfulness over the years is appreciated and the group will surely miss them.

Thans are extended to Mike Rosa, his wife Nita and her daughter Jade for the pure generosity in donating, cooking and serving sausages with peppers and onions, all the fixings and topping it off with Strawberry / Chocolate cake. Many other deserts were also donated.

Mark you calendars for 2016, the permit has been purchased for Wilmingtonites to meet again on Saturday March 12, 2016. Watch for the announcements in the Crier.

Helen G. Barosky-White

Loved her job at Kathy Ann's Bakery

EPING, NH - Helen G. Barosky-White, (Letellier), age 92, of Epping, NH, formerly a long-time resident of Rowley, MA, died peacefully on March 27, 2015, at the Country Center for Health & Rehabilitation in Newburyport.

Helen was born on September 28, 1922, in Cambridge, MA; she was the cherished daughter of the late Albert and Margaret Letellier. Helen was raised and educated in Wilmington, she was a member of a large and loving family and she enjoyed being from "the country."

Helen married the "love of her life" Francis Barosky in Fort Benning, GA on November 1, 1942; they were parents to three wonderful children, Geri, Tom, and David. Helen and Francis cherished their short time together as a family until Francis' untimely death in 1955; this was devastating to everyone.

Family was everything to Helen, through lots of hard work, love, and faith, Helen managed to keep things together and continued to raise her children just as they had planned.

Helen and her family lived in Tewksbury for several years before moving to Rowley where they lived for more than 35 years. In her later years, Helen moved to Epping, NH, with her daughter about 15 years ago.

Throughout the years, Helen worked as a retail salesperson in Newburyport but she really loved her job at Kathy Ann's Bakery where she could interact with the customers; she always had a gentle nature and a big smile.

In her spare time, Helen enjoyed bowling, dancing, and most of all spending time with her children and grandchildren and great-grandchildren. Helen was a "social butterfly" who had a great time at every special event and beamed with pride as she spoke of her family.

Helen was truly a "one of a kind lady" who will be greatly missed by all who knew and loved her.

Helen was the beloved wife of the late Francis Barosky and James White, devoted mother of Geri Fichera of Epping, NH, Tom Barosky & his wife Terri of Canton, MA, and Dave Barosky & his wife Sue of Hampstead, NH, loving "Grammy/Nana" of John Fichera, Jennifer Macaluso, Todd, Luke, and Mark Barosky, Lauren Barosky, Paige Dwire, Jake Barosky, Tori Gingras, Katie Rametta and great-grandchildren Julia, Ryne, Brooke, Jax, and Kaylee. Adopt-An-Island in Tewksbury

The Tewksbury Beautification Committee announces creation of an Adopt-an-Island program for the community.

The Adopt-an-Island Program provides opportunities for companies, civic groups, institutions and individuals to adopt a traffic island or other public space and create attractive, welcoming spaces throughout the Town.

Once adopted, sponsors agree to create a simple landscape plan, monitor their public space and maintain it throughout the season. Plantings need not be elaborate, but should create an appealing natural element. Participants are encouraged to utilize high impact/low maintenance plants wherever possible.

Maintenance will range from basic mowing, watering, weeding and litter control to more extensive efforts such as the planting of flowers.

The Town of Tewksbury maintains a list of public sites available for adoption and assigns spaces on a first-come, first-served basis. Agreements will be for three years.

Adopters will: Purchase the plants and install according to a plan or contract with a landscape company to do so.

- Install any plantings by the third week in May and maintain the bed until the first frost in October and clean-up for overwintering.

- Utilize only natural materials; plastic, silk or other imitation plants, flowers or materials will be removed.

- Maintain the site including mowing, trash removal, weeding, watering, spreading of mulch and revitalizing and replenishing throughout the season.

In return the Town of Tewksbury will:

- Provide and install an "Adopt and Island" sign recognizing the Adopter's efforts (no other signs or signage will be allowed on an island or close cluster of islands).

- Provide loam and mulch at the Public Works Department for pickup by Adopters.

To download an application and review all details, visit The Town of Tewksbury's web site at www.tewksbury-ma.gov and search for Adopt an Island or click the link http://www.tewksbury-ma.gov/sites/tewksbury-ma/files/adopt_an_island_program.pdf.

Questions may be addressed to the Beautification Committee at clean.up.tewksbury@gmail.com.

RMLD explains

Rising electric prices

In an ongoing effort to communicate to its customers about the projected rise in electricity costs over the next couple of years, Reading Municipal Light Department (RMLD) explains how transmission costs play a major role in the rising cost of electricity.

"Once electricity is produced at generating plants, it passes through a transformer that raises its voltage to as much as 345,000 volts for transmission. It flows through transmission lines, owned by investor-owned utilities like National Grid and Eversource [formerly NSTAR] to RMLD substation transformers where the electrical current is stepped down," said RMLD Integrated Resources Manager Jane Parenteau. "From the substation, RMLD distributes it into your neighborhood to a pole or ground transformer that steps it down once again to 120 volts. It then flows into your homes and businesses."

In the early 2000s Independent System Operator - New England (ISO-NE) and the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) offered incentives to transmission owners to upgrade and increase the capacity of their transmission systems. Subsequently, investor-owned utilities spent billions to expand and modernize their transmission systems. These costs are passed on to all electric consumers, including RMLD customers.

The transmission component of customers' bills has increased dramatically over the last decade. RMLD's transmission costs totaled approximately $3.25 million for 704 million kWh of electricity in 2006. By 2014, transmission costs more than tripled to over $10 million, while sales decreased to 688 million kWh.

This translates to customers using 750 kWh monthly and paying $3.50 for a transmission charge in 2006 are now paying a little over $11. And, these costs are projected to continue to rise through 2020.

RMLD's Integrated Resources Department manages the capability and capacity of the electric system by targeting the reduction of customer peak demand, offering energy efficiency recommendations, rebates, demand response and behind-the-meter generation, which could include renewable energy and or traditional fossil fuel.

To build and maintain customer relations and share information on current issues and trends in the electric industry, RMLD will explain how capacity, energy and distribution costs impact your bill in the coming weeks.

Children and Homelessness

Hits close to home in Tewksbury and Wilmington

By SHARON ADELMAN CROWLEY
Crier Correspondent
Sharon@YourTownCrier.com

When we think of homelessness, the first image that may come to mind is of individuals living on the streets. This is one segment of the homeless population. The stereotype of homelessness is often linked to panhandlers, drugs and crime, however within this increasing epidemic is an overlooked subset of families and children struggling to find stability every day.

The U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) links a lack of affordable housing to homelessness; approximately 12 million renters and homeowners spend over 50 percent of their annual income on housing. Remaining income must be divided between utilities, transportation, food, clothing, school supplies and other basic needs by working 40 hours a week or more, often at minimum wage, at multiple jobs - or risk homelessness.

"Families have become the fastest growing segment of the homeless population, comprising nearly 40 percent nationally," according to the National Center on Family Homelessness.

State agencies define homelessness as "individuals without adequate nighttime residence." Homeless services and housing assistance is underfunded and families with children are living in motels, hotels and transitional shelters. Some homeless youth are awaiting foster care placement or doubled up in temporary living arrangements without secure housing.

Children are profoundly impacted by homelessness. Unpredictable housing arrangements, frequent moves and the overall instability children endure day to day is exceedingly stressful. Some children experience abuse or witness domestic violence or substance abuse. Others are exposed to the constant stress their parents undergo while under or unemployed. All of this is traumatic and psychologically damaging as reported by HorizonsforHomelesschildren.org and National Child Traumatic Stress Network.

According to town officials, Tewksbury and Wilmington school districts each serve 14 children who qualify for services under the McKinney-Vento Act; federal legislation which protects the rights of homeless children to attend school with access to the same programs as all other students.

"We don't differentiate our students based on status," said Sheri Matthews, Tewksbury Public Schools Business Manager. "We provide all our students with the best education possible. We are making sure that they are eating a proper lunch. In instances where there are special education students, we are following all regulations as per their IEP's."

In Wilmington schools, Director of Administration and Finance, Paul Ruggiero, works with families and ensures they receive information on everything from food assistance to health care.

Beyond the support schools provide, a community can help lessen the impact of youth homelessness in the following ways:

1. DONATE: Homeless children have limited possessions. Ask school administrators about donating school supplies. Ask the Parent Advisory Council about fundraising initiatives; donate admission fees or proceeds from school events for scholastic and financial support.

For the last 2 years Director of Community Services, John Lyons, has collected Christmas presents for homeless children enrolled in Tewksbury public schools. Last year Enterprise Bank on Main Street and Cracker Barrel of Tewksbury purchased a total of 65 presents in addition to gifts from an anonymous donor. "The parents and children all enjoy the moment when they come and pick up their presents," said Lyons.

Also remember to support local food banks which need assistance year-round. Donate proceeds from craft, garage and yard sales or organize a food drive in your school or community.

2. VOLUNTEER: Horizons for Homeless Children is seeking volunteers to play with young children, up to six years of age, in shelter-based play spaces in Lynn, Peabody, Lawrence and Lowell. A commitment of 2 hours a week for 6 months and formal training are required. The next training sessions are Wednesday, April 15th, 6:00 pm to 9:30 pm in Lawrence and Saturday, May 9th, 9:30 am to 2:00 pm in Peabody. For more information call (978) 557-2182 or visit horizonschildren.org/playspace.

Volunteer your time to the Tewksbury Habitat Build. The Tewksbury Congregational Church, partnering with the Habitat for Humanity of Greater Lowell is building its first home at 110 State Street and will be seeking volunteers in all aspects of the project.

"The community at large will literally have a hand in building this new structure and in lifting up a family in need," Beth McFadyen recently told the Crier.

3. MENTOR - Another way to volunteer your time. Share hobbies or tutor children in homeless shelters. Become a literacy volunteer for children who miss school due to transitional situations. To find a program in your area visit: Reading is fundamental <http://www.rif.org/>

4. INVOLVE - the community at large: recruit local businesses to provide collection boxes for clothing, toys and canned goods or match donations from fundraising events. Carmon Cunningham, Owner of The Cleaner Spot in Wilmington is collecting prom dresses which are dry-cleaned then donated to those who cannot afford to go to prom. "We always accept coats for the homeless and canned goods and food products for the Wilmington Food Pantry," Cunningham said.

5. TEACH - others about homelessness and help remove the stigma of this growing epidemic.

"Perfect"

Wynn Middle School play makes you take a second look in the mirror.

BY SHARON ADELMAN CROWLEY
Crier Correspondent
Sharon@Yourtowncrier.com

TEWKSBURY
"Remember, the curtains and set are hot lava! Go!"

Jon DiPrima uses theatrical metaphor as his cast of 22 drama club students rapidly move on and offstage in a steady stream, avoiding the sets and each other.

An intense half hour play, "Perfect" has quick turns and the actors must have unwavering focus to get every move right.

DiPrima, the Wynn school's 7th grade Common Core teacher, co-directed last year's drama program with 7th grade ELA teacher Jackie Murphy. This is DiPrima's inaugural year as director and now he is calling the shots.

The setting onstage is sparse except for a wire-like "wall" which serves as an extension of the main character's confidence and connection to the world.

The main character Bethany is played by 7th grader Melanie Crepeau. We see her life unfold onstage from four-years-old through high school. She speaks into a handheld mirror during her inner monologues.

From a young age, Bethany experiences different parenting styles. "You see conflict rising. Neither parent is on the same page in terms of how to raise their daughter happily and healthfully," said DiPrima.

The father, played by 8th grader Connor Nugent, gives constructive criticism, noting things are imperfect yet trying to correct them. The mother, played by 8th grader Taylor Bellavia, protects her daughter from all negativity and continually tells Bethany she is perfect, regardless of the situation.

Playwright Alan Haehnel defines specific moments in Bethany's life. Her notions of perfectionism are first challenged in kindergarten when she meets rival Lisa, played by 7th grader Angelina Carew, who knows the right way to use scissors and cut on the dotted line.

"It's the first time Bethany experiences the idea of her not being the best at something," said DiPrima.

Despite her mother's encouragement, Bethany continues to experience failure during a baseball game, even when her father attempts to help her. The parents argue over this; a hint that the marriage is disintegrating.

The play is also inter-persed with humor. "There is an incredibly cute and funny scene with puppets, created by 7th grade cast member Shayna Crowley," said DiPrima. Puppeteers Cameron Smith, Brooke Fullerton and Tyler Paulding star in an after-school action cartoon, trying to convince Bethany she needs certain action figures and accessories in order to fit in socially.

As Bethany is consumed by peer pressure and self-doubt, she is caught in a psychological tug-of-war between her parents and boyfriend, played by 7th grader Sean Sears. "It's like she's living inside a pressure cooker," said DiPrima. Her subsequent breakup and parents' divorce sends Bethany into a dark spiral before finding herself perfect just as she is.

DiPrima chose "Perfect" for its solid, believable characters, "Which shows what our kids are capable of."

With a variety of scenes and characters, this play has opportunities for each actor to show their versatility. "Almost the entire cast plays multiple roles made up of many short scenes," said DiPrima. "I wanted to make sure that every member of my club felt valued."

In terms of technical production, the students execute everything, said DiPrima. "The show has 10 devoted and amazing crew members who make the sets, lights and sound run smoothly. They are running the show."

The cast maturely handles subjects such as peer pressure, drugs and divorce - issues that will resonate with middle school and high school students - with a thought-provoking take-away: "Are we happy with ourselves or looking for perfection in the eyes of other people?" asks DiPrima. "And if we are, how dangerous can that be to our own personal identities?"

"Perfect" runs for two days only at the Wynn Middle School, 1 Griffin Way, Tewksbury on Wednesday, April 15, 7:30 pm and Thursday, April 16 at 7:30 pm.

Tickets are $5.00 at the door. Recommended for ages 10 and up.

Benning's design wins Gold

Hannah Benning, a senior from Tewksbury majoring in Design and Visual Communications at Shawsheen Valley Technical High School, has earned one of the first SkillsUSA gold medals for 2015 in a statewide design competition.

SkillsUSA, a student leadership organization, selected her design for a trading pin that will be worn by students representing Massachusetts at a national competition.

Students from across the state competed, with more than 200 designs being submitted.

Benning's design features a silhouette of the Boston skyline featuring the Zakim Bridge on a red and white flag-style background. The design also incorporates the tools of the many trades that are offered at career and technical schools such as Shawsheen Tech.

Benning said she did a little research to help her come up with her idea.

"I looked at last year's winning design (by Shawsheen student Alex Hamilton of Billerica) and a couple of other references and put them all together and came up with the design," she said.

"It's very exciting," said Alison Ouellette, a DVC instructor and a SkillsUSA advisor at Shawsheen. "She definitely followed the creative process and went through multiple edits, showed multiple instructors and refined it as needed. She was very dedicated to the task and worked really hard."

Benning laughs when remembering the day that she learned of her first-place finish.

"When the teachers came into the classroom and told me that I ended up getting gold," she said with a laugh. "I almost broke my glasses. I was cleaning my glasses at the time."

In addition to winning the gold medal in the pin design contest, Benning also submitted a design for the state T-shirt. The shirt design earned Benning a silver medal.

Benning's pin design was created in Adobe Illustrator, one of the programs that the DVC students become proficient at during their time at Shawsheen. Benning is planning on attending Northern Essex College in the fall and then continuing on to an art school to finish her degree in fine art and design.

The winning pin will now be imprinted Official Massachusetts State Trading Pin that will be worn by every one of the 2,500 students and advisors at the SkillsUSA State Leadership and Skills Conference held in Marlborough in May, as well as worn by students representing Massachusetts at the National Leadership Conference and SkillsUSA Competition in Louisville, Kentucky, in June.

Each state creates a pin and the goal of competitors is the collect all 50-plus pins.

By winning the competition, Benning has earned a trip to the national conference where she will join the other 6,000 competitors from across the country. During the conference, Benning will compete with winning student designers from other states.

Judges will select the best pin design from across the 50 states.

During state and national SkillsUSA competitions, career and technical education students will compete hands-on in 98 different trade, technical and leadership fields.

Ouellette said that the school's back-to-back trips to national for the pin design competition, Benning this year and Hamilton last year, has developed plenty of excitement at the school.

"All of my students are really excited about it," she said. "Alex has such a positive experience [at nationals] that he really has inspired students."

Acquisition won't compromise quality

Woodbriar is Synergy's most recent acquisition. Synergy Health Centers is a rapidly growing consortium with facilities across the Northeast.

The acquisition brings Synergy's number of Massachusetts-based skilled nursing facilities to ten. The other nine homes are West Revere Health Center, Brockton Health Center, Braemore Health Center, Worcester Health Center, Watertown Health Center, Waban Health Center, Park Avenue Health Center, New England Health Center and Merrimack Valley Health Center.

Synergy Health Centers are distinguished by their "unique" approach to healthcare, which includes a hotel-style Concierge at each facility. Their goal is to provide "impeccable customer service, and a ground breaking employee recognition initiative."

Synergy's claim is that they are on the "cutting-edge of technology and medicine," and aim to serve the Woodbriar community by "maintaining a nurturing, homelike environment."

Woodbriar Health Center, located at 90 West Street in Wilmington, MA, is a 142-bed facility that provides post-acute and long-term care, primarily for residents in their 80's and 90's in addition to short term rehabilitation. Their therapists work with residents who have had surgery, including hip or knee repair or replacement, stroke and heart attack victims and patients who have had an amputation.

Woodbriar's team includes the resident's nurse, physical therapist, occupational therapist, social worker, and physician. All work to prepare a one-on-one, individual therapy plan and treatment course for each patient, and families are encouraged to participate.

Woodbriar has devoted significant space to physical and medical rehabilitation care, offering two gyms that feature state-of-the-art equipment such as stationary bikes, hand and ankle weights, parallel bars, and standing tables, and a fully equipped therapeutic kitchen.

Synergy's goal is to build upon Woodbriar's tradition of care while expanding and upgrading services of the facility in order to continue providing residents with top-notch care.

The Crier spoke with Synergy's Director of Public Relations Uri Turk. Turk said of Synergy, "Communities are most important. We're not trying to shake things up. We want to improve on the quality that's always been there."

Turk shared some of the benefits that Synergy has planned for the facility, including a full-time Concierge. "We're trying to bring in more of a resort aspect," adding, "We also have what's called a Drive Program for family members who want to come visit." The Program is geared toward family members being picked up and driven to the facility and back to their homes.

Woodbriar, which opened in 1993, is a bright and airy facility, and according to their website have "a very high staff retention rate." According to Turk, it is planned to keep existing staff.

According to a poll done by the Massachusetts Department of Public Health, it was found that 100 percent of Woodbriar's long-term rehabilitation residents and their families would be likely to recommend Woodbriar. In overall satisfaction ratings, the facility earned 4.75 on a 5 point scale.

Woodbriar has also earned the Gold Seal of the Joint Commission of Accreditation of Health-Care Organizations.

State to cut Kindergarten funding

cuts has been that 85% of students currently have full-day kindergarten, and as such, grant are not needed.

But DeLai countered that this reporting was disingenuous. She reported to the committee that while many districts do offer full-day kindergarten, there are a number of districts which offer several options, including tuition-based full-day, and these students are not reflected properly by the governor's calculations.

"It's playing a little fast and furious with the stats to say that 85 percent of districts offer full day kindergarten," DeLai said to the committee. "That leads you to believe that 85 percent of districts are receiving the full grant, but it misrepresents the number of students actually in full-day kindergarten."

DeLai expanded on this point in later conversation with the Crier.

"The thing that concerns me most about the proposal, and knowing that it is the governor's proposal, the cutting of the kindergarten expansion program is highly problematic," said Superintendent DeLai.

"We spend a lot of time in Massachusetts focusing on early education and making it as available as possible with the understanding that a good foundation at early age sets the tone for successes in later years."

Byrnes read a strongly-worded draft of a letter to the governor. The letter has not been sent, as the school committee intends to deliberate over the content and present a finalized letter at their next meeting.

In the meantime, the committee encourages parents to contact the state delegation and make sure that local voices and concerns are heard.

"The full day kindergarten grant was critical for communities like Wilmington to transfer from half-day programs and, for better or for worse, communities have become reliant on those funds," DeLai said. "I think it is wrong to pull the rug out from under folks and take away a resource that we rely on."

"Setting example" platform for run

It's important they see leadership."

Kevin MacDonald was not available for comment, however, this is not MacDonald's first run.

MacDonald and Champoux faced off three years ago when top issues included the new high school construction project, the appointment of then Town Manager Michael Caira's successor, cash reserves, and the potential purchase of the Yentile property. In that race, Champoux topped the ticket by receiving more than 1,100 votes.

MacDonald also ran for Selectman in 2013 against incumbents Mike Newhouse and Lou Cimaglia. MacDonald was opposed to the high school project on environmental grounds, and as part of what is known as the Ten Resident Group, led an effort to stop the project, which, while unsuccessful, did delay the project seven months. Town Manager Jeffrey Hull recently put a letter out to the Board of Selectmen citing 'a few individuals,' pointing out ensuing repercussions such as an increase of nearly $1.5 million in project costs.

The Town Moderator position also engendered a contested race with both Robert Peterson, Jr. and Leigh Martinson having returned their papers for the position vacated by James Stewart who held the office for 23 years.

Both Manny Mulas and MJ Byrnes have returned papers for reelection to the Wilmington School Committee. While two open seats are on the board, no challengers have stepped forward. Incumbent James Gillis is running uncontested for a third term to the Shawsheen Valley Technical High School Committee.

Leona Bombard of Deming Way is running for reelection to the Housing Authority for another 5 year term, returning her papers on March 4th.

Monday, April 6 is the last day to register to vote for Town Election and Town Meeting. Town Clerk's office will be open until 8:00 PM.

The Annual Town Election will be held on Saturday, April 25th with polls open between 8:00 AM and 8:00 PM. Precinct 1 and 2 voting will be held at the Boutwell School, 17 Boutwell St.; Precincts 3 and 4 voting will be held at the Wildwood School, 182 Wildwood St.; and Precincts 5 and 6 voting will be held at the Town Hall, 121 Glen Rd.

The Annual Town Meeting will be held on Saturday, May 2nd at 10:30 AM at the Wilmington High School, 159 Church St.

Youth Lacrosse League celebrates ten great years

By BRENDAN FOLEY
Sports Correspondent

BrendanMFoley@Outlook.com

WILMINGTON- The Wilmington Youth Lacrosse Association celebrated their 10-year anniversary with a party at the Wilmington Knights of Columbus on Friday night. The anniversary party filled the hall with music and fun as about 130 participants looked back on the road which led the program to the still-expanding place it stands today.

Along with the fun and food, the event was a chance to honor the founding members of WYLA and reflect on where the program began and where it might yet go.

Mike Fay, Kevin Blanch, Mike Leighton, Mark Kennedy, and the late Paul McDougall brought lacrosse to Wilmington and the town has heartily embraced the sport. Fay, Blanch, Leighton, and Sheila McDougall – on behalf of her husband – were on hand to be awarded with commemorative lacrosse sticks and receive a heartfelt ovation from program members, past and present.

“The programs changed in the last ten years as the new board members we have on now, they’ve taken it to the next level,” said Mike Leighton. “They’ve definitely taken it to a level that us dads never could have imagined.”

“The best thing about the program is the people around it,” said current board member Tim Penney. “Everything here is for the kids, and everyone does a great job promoting the sport and it has grown exponentially every year. It has only grown bigger.”

WYLA has proven to be a tightknit group over the decade of its existence, with many members remaining on to help guide the program through its expansion.

“We have a really good core group,” said current league vice president Jennifer Martins. “A lot of the people here now have been here from the very beginning.”

Martins has seen firsthand just how lacrosse swept through the town and began giving children a different, fresher outlet for their energies besides some of the more traditional sports.

“I think at a younger age, kids can just bored with some of those other sports, like baseball,” Martins said. “Lacrosse is a fast paced game.”

And, like the game, the WYLA has moved quickly to occupy a central place in the town’s athletic scene. The organization continues to grow with each passing year, recording its highest number of sign-ups just this year.

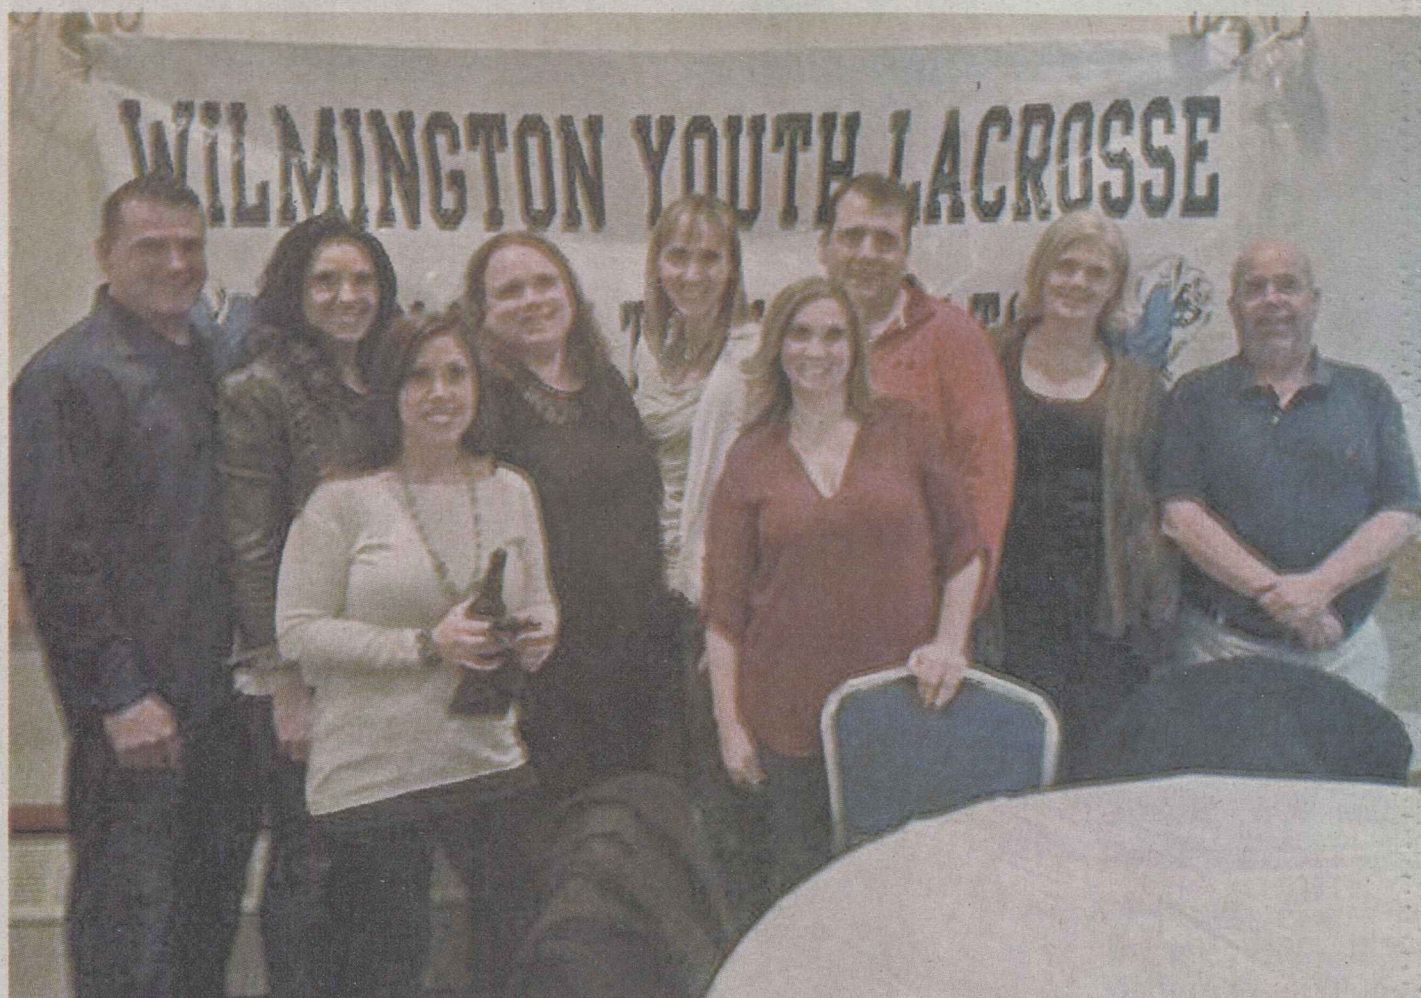

For the first year, the WYLA instituted winter sessions this year, and has seen more and more new players and board members. The steady influx of new blood and new ideas keeps the program moving forward with the needs of the town. By any measure, lacrosse is still very much on the rise for the youth of the community.

And WYLA is taking steps to further entrench itself in that community. For the first year, the WYLA will be marching in the Memorial Day parade with their own float. A scholarship in McDougall’s name is available to high school students, and WYLA has more plans to keep the program moving forward, while also supporting and giving back to the town which has always welcomed it.

“I’d like to get to that point where we can have teams at every level that can compete across New England,” Penney said. “I’d love for us to have that core of kids that can compete on that level.”

“I’d like to see the Under-9 (players) get more involved, and right now the board is very heavily involved with,” said Leighton. “I would like to see a feeder program for our high school and our high school team get back to the playoffs.”

With lacrosse still on the rise across the country, Martins believes that the best times may be still ahead for the WYLA. And so, even as the organization looks back on the past to honor the people who shaped the league, it also looks into the future for where the sport and players might grow, given the proper support.

“Often times the largest challenge you have in the promotion of youth lacrosse is getting kids to pick up that stick for the first time,” Martins said. “With support from the town and a continued commitment from the volunteers that help run the Wilmington Youth Lacrosse League, we would like to see more exposure to the game.

“For kids that play football or soccer in the fall, or basketball or hockey in the winter, we believe there is no more complimentary a sport than the sport of lacrosse.”

RMA Fitness helps support Jackie Sugrue

‘Feel The Teal’ Fundraiser a huge success

By BRENDAN FOLEY
Sports Correspondent

BrendanMFoley@Outlook.com

WILMINGTON- Dozens of locals rushed to participate in Sunday’s “Feel The Teal” fundraiser at the RMA Fitness Center, in support of beloved local Jackie Sugrue, recently diagnosed with ovarian cancer.

From this dark time,

Jackie’s family and friends have rallied the community together and are working overtime to provide as much energy and support as possible.

The response has been more overwhelming than any of them could have imagined.

“I was shocked,” said Danielle Sugrue, Jackie’s sister. “Even just the people who were just working out, who didn’t really know Jackie or know what was going on, they still donated money after hearing her story. It’s just nice people being nice, and it was so touching.”

The three-hour event was originally pitched by Nichole Simbeck, a trainer at RMA and a good friend of Jackie’s. For three hours and three classes, all proceeds from the gym went to support Jackie’s fight against cancer.

The classes were immediate sell-outs, with additional support coming thanks to “Sugrue Strong” t-shirts that were instant bestsellers. The Sugrues were astonished by just how readily the town stepped up to support Jackie.

“I think because we are from Wilmington, the gym is in Wilmington, my parents have lived here their whole lives and my dad works (for the town), everyone kind of knows everyone,” Danielle said. “People speak very highly of Jackie, and I think people hear about her and this terrible thing that happened and want to help.”

The three-hour event involved three different classes: spin with Robyn Sardellitti, Tabata with Simbeck, and Zumba with Brian Considine. All three trainers volunteered their own time, to the tremendous gratitude of the Sugrues.

“We are so grateful to people like Robyn and Brian, who donated time to be here for someone they didn’t even know,” Danielle said.

The Sugrues hope to do more events in the future, with the hopefully-approaching spring warmth giving them a more appealing climate to host activities. But for the moment, they are simply overjoyed with the response received for this first event.

“It’s so nice and we are so appreciative,” Danielle said. “People don’t realize that something so small can mean so much. It makes you feel warm and happy that there are people out there who are so willing to do everything they can to help out.”

In a prepared statement, the Sugrues expressed their love and gratitude to the people of RMA, and all the people in Wilmington who came out in support of Jackie and her fight.

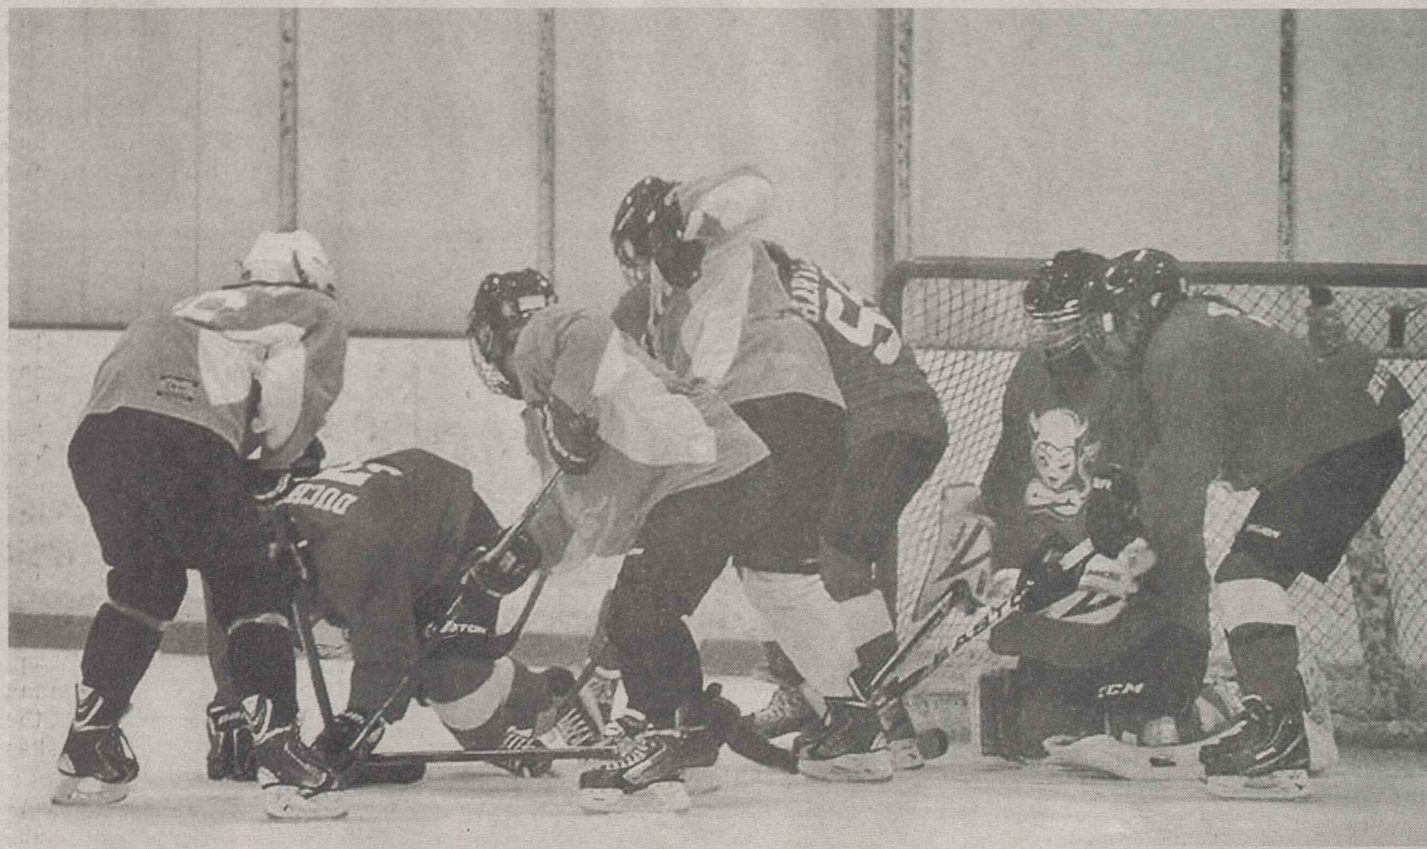

“We would like to give a special thank you to the owners of RMA, Bob and Patty who were kind enough to donate gym time, as well as snacks and beverages for the cause,” the statement read. “It truly is amazing what can happen when you bring people together. You never know what kind of outcome you will have when you’re planning it.”

“We just want people to know that we appreciate all the love, prayers and support we have been receiving. It really means so much to our family.”

BrendanMFoley@Outlook.com

WILMINGTON- For the second straight year, the ladies are hitting the ice.

After the initial "Chicks With Sticks" fundraiser was such a huge hit last year, the event headed by Tricia Lambert will take place on Sunday, April 12th at 1 pm at the Stoneham Ice Arena.

This match-up will have the "The Babes on Blades" and "The Slapshot Sistas" and coming off last year's success which raised over $10,000, the ladies are striving for another afternoon of fun and laughs brought to you by a large number of Wilmington Youth Hockey Moms.

Besides raising a great deal of money for both youth hockey and breast cancer, the game gives hockey moms a chance to take the ice and show their husbands, children, and the world at large that they can skate and play with the best of them.

"I never thought at my age that I would love something like this as much as I do," said event organizer and participant Joan Mullarky. "It's fabulous, and I have made so many great friends."

The overwhelmingly positive reception to the game last year has led to twice as many signups for this year's game.

This year will also see the return of Rene Rancourt, the longtime Boston Bruins' icon. The beloved singer, known for his fist-pumping national anthem before each Bruins game, sang the ladies onto the ice last year and he is scheduled to appear again before this year's game.

Amongst all the fun and laughter, the game also serves an important function in breast cancer awareness and research. For many, if not most, of the women on the life, breast cancer has had a profound personal impact.

"A year ago, I had cancer," said Jennifer Driscoll. "I never in a million years would have thought that a year later that I would be out skating. It's another thing that I've accomplished."

Even for women who have not fought breast cancer personally, it has still touched their lives through friends and family. Every time they touch skates to ice, these women are striking a blow against a malicious disease.

"There are so many moms, women in Wilmington, and everywhere, that have this terrible disease," Mullarky said. "This is a great cause, and a great chance for women to come out and have a great time together."

More than the competition, the women involved with the game seem most thrilled at the chance to bond with other women and claim some time for themselves to have fun and exert themselves away from home.

"They didn't have hockey for girls when we were young," Kristin Kelly said. "This is the first chance I've gotten to play, and I just love it."

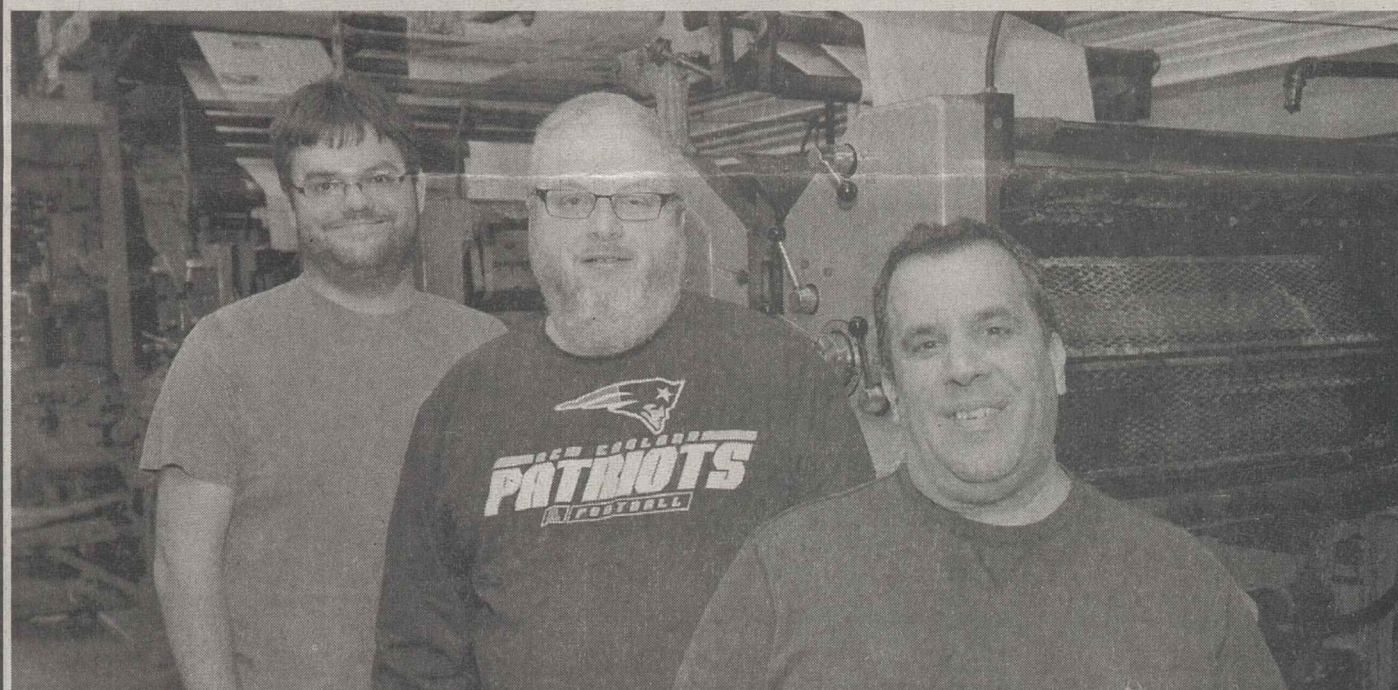

"It's been a huge transformative experience for me," said Kelly Richards. "I actually grew up in a hockey town and was against my son playing. But by playing and skating with this group of moms, I actually really love it now."

"I'm kind of addicted to it at this point," laughed Driscoll. "I'd be out there skating every day if I could. I can't stress enough the amazing women that we skate with."

With game day drawing close, the ladies have kept up practicing and are ready to show off their skills for the town. No matter who wins, it is safe to say that everyone has had an experience they can treasure for now on.

"It's our time," Mullarky said. "We love our kids, we enjoy watching our kids play, but this is our time for ourselves. It's Mom time."

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent
sports@yourtowncrier.com

Starting with lacrosse, Regis College attack Peter Leighton, of Wilmington, had four goals and three assists for the Pride in a 16-4 win over Albertus Magnus last Thursday. He followed that up with a goal and three assists on Saturday in a 9-8 overtime win over Johnson & Wales. In that game Leighton assisted on both the game tying goal with five seconds left in regulation as well as the overtime game winner.

Rivier senior defender Andy Wells continued his impressive season for the Raiders this past week, playing strong defense in a pair of wins, a 14-7 triumph over Becker last Wednesday and a 9-4 win over Mitchell on Saturday.

Rivier sophomore attack Jane Farrell had assists in consecutive games this past week, first in a 15-13 Raiders win over Mount Ida last Saturday, and again Monday in an 18-4 win over Daniel Webster. Against Daniel Webster, Farrell also had a team high six ground ball pickups.

On the track, Bentley University junior Erik Alatalo finished fifth in the 5,000 meters at the Tufts Snowflake Classic last Saturday in the outdoor season opener for the Falcons. Alatalo finished in a time of 16:01.31.

After a strong showing during the indoor season, Regis freshman Kate Cowden opened up the Spring season in impressive fashion this weekend, earning a third place finish and breaking the Regis record in the discus with a throw of 31.19 meters. Cowden also placed tenth out of 35 competitors in the shot put with a distance of 10.21 meters.

In baseball, Salem State junior pitcher Tim Woods picked up the win in the Vikings 11-1 win over Suffolk last Wednesday. Woods pitched seven innings, allowing just five hits and one earned run while striking out three batters.

UMass Amherst junior shortstop Vinny Scifo went 2-for-3 with a run scored in a 16-3 loss to VCU on Friday. The former Town Crier Male Athlete of the Year came back the next day to draw key walk and score a run in a three run eighth inning of a 3-2 UMass win over VCU.

Finally in softball, Worcester State junior Taylor Hanley had a great doubleheader against Mass Maritime on Sunday, helping to lead the Lancers to a sweep of the two games. In game one Hanley was 2-for-3 with two runs scored, two RBI's and a stolen base. She may have been even better in game two, going 3-for-3 including a double, with two RBI's and a run scored.

For the season Hanley is batting .375 and her nine RBI's are good for second on the team.

TEWKSBURY

Several Tewksbury track stars had big weeks, starting with Merrimack College senior Anthony Arcari, who earned a second place finish in the 200 meters in a time of 23.17 seconds at the Tufts Snowflake Invitational last Saturday. Arcari, a former Town Crier Athlete of the Year, also took fourth place in the 100-meter dash in a time of 11.12 seconds.

Bucknell University junior Jess Bridle -- also a former Athlete of the Year -- opened up her spring season on a strong note for the Bison last Saturday, earning a fourth place finish in the 400 meter dash in a time of 58.48 at the Monmouth Season Opener. Bridle was also part of the Bison's 4x400 relay team that finished second in a time of 4:00.94.

Franklin Pierce sophomore Cory Cataldo finished seventh in a field of 40 competitors in the long jump at the Tufts Snowflake Invitational with a top distance of 6.31 meters.

Franklin Pierce freshman Peter Murray continues to impress in the early going of his college career, finishing 21st in the hammer throw at the Snowflake Classic with a throw of 27.45 meters.

Worcester State sophomore Courtney Spinelli got her Spring season off to a strong start, taking sixth place in the javelin at the Snowflake Classic with a throw of 30.59 meters.

WPI junior George Kuegler helped the Engineers to a first place finish at the Coast Guard Invitational last Saturday, taking a fourth place finish in the 110-meter hurdles.

On the Women's side, senior Andrea Caprio also helped WPI to a victory at the Coast Guard Invitational, taking third place in the javelin with a throw of 110-02 feet.

On the baseball diamond, Wentworth senior infielder Joe Hulme had a big day in a doubleheader sweep for the Leopards recently. In game one of the twin bill against Roger Williams, Hulme went 1-for-4 with a walk, a double, two RBI's and two runs scored in a 7-5 win. In the second game, Hulme was 1-for-2 with another double in Wentworth's 1-0 victory.

Colby-Sawyer senior catcher Rob Wallace went 1-for-3 for the Chargers on Sunday in a 6-0 loss to Husson. The day before Wallace had gone 0-for-2, but driven in a run with a sacrifice fly in the Chargers tilt against Husson.

Rivier University Junior Jon Chotkowski was named the Great Northeast Athletic Conference Pitcher of the Week last week. Chotkowski earned his first win of the season in the team's 4-2 win over Gallaudet on Saturday, March 21. The southpaw tossed four innings of relief allowing just one run on five hits with four strikeouts.

In softball, Framingham State sophomore pitcher/shortstop Tiffanie Marsh picked up her first career win for the Rams in their 4-3 victory over Fitchburg State on Sunday. Marsh allowed seven hits over a complete game seven innings, while allowing just two earned runs and striking out two batters. Marsh also helped her own cause at the plate, going 1-for-4 with an RBI.

On the season, Marsh leads the Rams with a .357 batting average to go along with a home run and five RBI's.

Worcester State freshman Danielle Cacciola went 1-for-3 to help the Lancers to a 16-1 win over Mass Maritime on Sunday. Cacciola has played in seven of the Lancers 12 games on the season and is batting .353.

While the results were not great for her team, Mount

Ida sophomore Sam Laferriere had a fine doubleheader on Monday against Lasell. Laferriere went 2-for-3 in the first game of the twin bill, a 6-0 loss by the Mustangs, and followed that up by going 1-for-3 with a run scored in the night cap, a 13-5 loss.

In lacrosse, Franklin Pierce senior Erik Kelly had two goals and an assist last Wednesday in a 15-10 Ravens loss to Merrimack College. He followed that up by picking up an assist for the Ravens in an 8-7 win over Pace on Saturday.

Dylan Leone, a defender/long stick middle for Franklin Pierce, assisted on the game winning goal with 4:32 left in the game for the Ravens in their 8-7 win over Pace last Saturday.

Lasell sophomore defender Mike Pino had a team high five ground ball pickups during the Lasers 18-6 win over Albertus Magnus last Saturday. Pino and Lasell improved to 5-3 on the season with the victory.

Former Tewksbury High star Tim Donovan has seen action in one game for the Salem State Lacrosse team, which boasts a 5-2 record at this point in the season. The freshman midfielder is rising up the depth chart on a very talented team, and will likely be seeing more game action as the season progresses.

Rivier University freshman Taylor Lirakis had two goals in a 15-13 Raiders win over Mount Ida last Saturday and followed that up with a goal and an assist in an 18-4 win over Daniel Webster on Monday.

For the season Lirakis has 14 goals and four assists, and her 18 points are second most on the team.

PRO HOCKEY

Wilmington's Joe Pendenza, of the AHL's Milwaukee Admirals, is heating up the score sheet even as the Admirals are struggling to pick up wins in their quest for a playoff berth.

Pendenza picked up points in three straight games last week, each time coming in a losing effort. He started his hot streak last Wednesday when he had a goal and an assist in a 4-3 shootout loss to the San Antonio Rampage. He followed that up with an assist on Friday night in an 8-4 loss to the Chicago Wolves and another helper in a 3-2 shootout loss to the same Chicago team on Saturday night. Pendenza now has nine goals and nine assists for 18 points on the season.

Tewksbury's Patrick Cullity continued his exceptional play as a defenseman for the Idaho Steelheads, the ECHL affiliate of the Dallas Stars.

Cullity, an assistant captain for the Steelheads, helped lead his team to a 2-1 record last week in a three game series with the Utah Grizzlies. The Steelheads won the first two games of the series by scores of 5-3 and 7-4 before dropping the finale in a 4-3 shootout.

With four games left in the regular season the Steelheads are in first place in the ECHL's Western Conference with 96 points, one point ahead of the Allen Americans.

JUNIOR HOCKEY

Zach Malatesta of Wilmington may very well be the next local skater to move on to the professional ranks. He has already made quite the impact in his first season of major junior hockey, playing for the Moncton Wildcats of the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League.

The defenseman, who finished the regular season with eight goals and 21 assists for 29 points, was recently selected as Moncton's Fan's Choice Award Rookie of the Year.

Annual Wilmington Little League Parade to take place on April 18

Wilmington Little League will kick off the 2015 season with a Parade of Players and Opening Day Ceremonies on Saturday April 18th, when the Little League Parade steps off from the Town Common area at 9:30 am.

The on-field ceremonies will take place at Rotary Park and will include introductions of special guests, ceremonial first pitch by two Wilmington Veterans plus the singing of the National Anthem. The Lowell Spinners mascot Canagator will also be on hand. All parade participants will receive a hot dog and drink provided with the assistance of the Wilmington Kiwanis Club.

This year over 500 local players will participate in baseball and softball games within Wilmington Little League's different divisions. More than 100 managers, coaches and parents will volunteer their time supporting our program.

Following the ceremonies, the season will get under way when the Tigers take on the Orioles in Little League Major Division

For more information visit our website at www.wilmingtonlittleleague.org

Wilmington Little League invites the community to bring their old baseball and softball equipment to a drive on April 4, 2015 from 10 AM-2 PM at the parking lot of Presidential Park, 314 Main Street, Wilmington. Have a bat, glove, helmet, cleats or other equipment that is taking up space? We'll take it!

Gloves, bats and cleats still in good condition will be made, available to Wilmington players on opening day, which is scheduled for April 18th.

All other equipment will be donated to Roberto's Kids, an organization that gets equipment to baseball and softball teams in the United States, Canada and Latin America that would not otherwise have access to baseball and softball equipment.

For more information on Wilmington Little League, including sponsorship opportunities for the upcoming spring season, visit us at www.wilmington-littleleague.org.

The Wildcat Athletic Alumni and Friends are hosting their 5th Annual "100 Hungry Wildcats" dinner and raffle on Friday, April 17, 2015 at the Wilmington Knights of Columbus Hall.

The main fundraising event for the group is a catered buffet dinner for two and a knock-out raffle that totals $2,500 in prize money. Over the course of the raffle, entrants have the potential to win a variety of prizes including apparel, gift certificates, and additional cash prizes. There are only 100 tickets available at a donation of $100 per ticket.

The mission of the Wildcat Athletic Alumni and Friends is to provide for the needs of the Wilmington High School athletic programs and encourage interest and participation from our athletic programs' alumni and friends.

The needs of the athletic department include athletic equipment, transportation, and awards and recognition that may not necessarily fit within the athletic department's budget. It is the group's aim and intent to enhance the high school athletic experience of Wilmington High School's student-athletes, helping provide them with the tools to achieve their full potential and properly recognize their achievements.

Programs the Wildcat Athletic Alumni and Friends already support include commemorative plaques recognizing Middlesex League championships, the unveiling of the banner commemorating WHS Basketball's 1,000 point scorers, and the re-launching of the senior athletic banquet at the end of the school year.

The Alumni and Friends group have also been responsible for holding athletic events to generate camaraderie among former Wilmington High student-athletes. Over the past few years the group has put on a series of alumni games over Thanksgiving weekend and an alumni track meet in June.

If you are interested in supporting the Wildcat Athletic Alumni and Friends 5th Annual "100 Hungry Wildcats" event, please contact Jack Cushing at (978) 658-2170 or Kevin Cair at (978) 657-7734. Tickets are limited so don't wait to call.

Lowell Spinners tickets on sale

The Lowell Spinners, Class A affiliate of the Boston Red Sox, announced their 2015 Promotional Schedule full of theme nights, giveaways in advance of Single Game Ticket Sales.

The 2015 season will feature a mixture of returning themes and promotions with new concepts, new giveaways and more fun than ever before. The team has five scheduled bobble head giveaway nights, six fireworks shows and visits from touring acts, popular theme nights and celebrity guests.

"We feel this is one of our most complete promotional schedules in recent years," said Spinners President and General Manager Tim Bawmann. "The most exciting part is we are not done with it yet. We still have a number of great themes and promotions in the work that we are looking forward to revealing as the season approaches."

Among the many highlights are the coveted bobble head giveaways, headlined by a special bobble head July 26, when the team gives away Pete Frates Bobbling Ice Bucket Figures.

"Pete and his entire family are truly inspiring," said Bawmann. "This special bobble head won't have a bobbling head, rather the ice bucket that Pete and his family helped make a household term in 2015 in their quest to promote ALS Awareness. We look forward to continuing that quest at LeLacheur Park."

In addition to the Frates doll, the team will have a Dogman bobble head, featuring a faux hair mustache, July 15, a Keith Aucoin Lowell Lock Monsters Bobble Head (July 23), a "Fan Vote" Bobble Head (July 21) and a Zombie Bobble Head (August 23).

Popular theme nights will return as well, including Star Wars Day (July 11), Bark in the Park (July 12), Boston Bruins Night (July 24), Pirates Night (August 8), Princess Night (August 7) and Super Hero Day (August 22). Traveling act "Zooperstars" will also return to LeLacheur as part of the special 11:05am first pitch July 22.

Additional giveaways will include a special 2008 Stedler Division Champions ring, commemorating the Spinners first ever playoff team, August 26, and replica jersey of a pair of special on-field jerseys the Spinners team will be wearing including a "Parrot Head" jersey for Jimmy Buffet Night (August 6) and camouflage jersey for Military Appreciation Night (July 9).

The armed services will once again be honored at LeLacheur Park this summer, with special on-field jerseys for the aforementioned Military Night, as well as the third edition of the team's "Military Hero Baseball Card Set," (August 30) and Vietnam Veterans Night (July 13).

"There are few nights we look forward to more at the ballpark than those where we can show thanks and appreciation for the men and women of our armed services," said Bawmann. "The 'Hero Card Set' gives me goose bumps each year."

Fans of fireworks will be pleased to know "Friday Night Fireworks" will also return, with five Friday Night shows and a special July 4 Independence Day spectacular. Kids Eat Free Monday and Weenie Wednesday, featuring $1 hot dogs, are back on the schedule as well and more themes and giveaways are expected to be announced in the coming weeks.

Wilmington Squirt IV's bounce back

The Wilmington Youth Hockey Squirt 4's wrapped up their regular season this past week by splitting a pair of games, first suffering a very tough loss last Wednesday night, but rebounding with a big win on Sunday to close out their season as they prepare for the Valley Hockey League playoffs which begin this weekend.

The Wildcats started their week with a tough 4-3 loss to Haverhill on Wednesday night at the Haverhill Valley Forum in a game in which they dominated for all but a 32 second span near the end of the second period when Haverhill scored three times to erase a 3-1 deficit and take a 4-3 lead they would never relinquish.

Wilmington took a 1-0 lead just over two minutes into the game when Adam Ippolito pounced on a loose puck in front and scored with 9:52 left in the first period with assists going to Sean O'Donoghue and Nick Spencer.

With goalie Jake McLean on top of his game, making several brilliant saves, including a beauty of a blocker save with 6:30 left in the period, the Wildcats would take their one goal lead into the second period.

Haverhill would tie the game at 1-1 with 7:30 left in the second period, but the Wildcats came back with two straight goals by Daniel Lagunilla to take a seemingly comfortable 3-1 lead. Lagunilla's first goal came with 4:12 left in the period on an assist by Jordan Legere when Lagunilla beat the Haverhill goalie five-hole for a 2-1 lead.

Moments later, with 2:36 left in the period Lagunilla made a great steal at the Haverhill blue line and beat the Hillies net minder with a beautiful wrist shot to make the score 3-1.

The lead certainly seemed secure, but Haverhill had other ideas and struck quickly for three straight goals, the first coming with 51.7 seconds left in the period. After winning the ensuing faceoff, the Hillies would strike again with 36.8 seconds left and would take the lead with 18.6 seconds left after once again winning the faceoff and taking control in the Wilmington end.

The Wildcats would have their chances to tie the game in the third period, with Bobby Dodge, Dylan Mullarky, Brett Gallucci and Nick Whalen each applying pressure. Haverhill had their chances as well, but between McLean's great goaltending along with the defensive work of O'Donoghue, Shane Costello and Aardarsh Sivakumar they were unable to extend their lead and the game came down to literally the final seconds when Dodge was robbed at the buzzer.

If the Wildcats were disappointed with their tough luck loss to Haverhill, they did not let it affect them in their next game on Sunday against Lexington-Bedford on Sunday at the Breakaway Ice Center when they rolled to a 6-0 victory.

Wilmington was led on the day by a well balanced scoring attack, with two goals each from Sean O'Donoghue and Bobby Dodge, while Daniel Lagunilla and Jack Seibel each added assists. Dodge added two assists on the day, while O'Donoghue, Lagunilla and Nick Whalen also each added assists.

Jake McLean earned the shutout in net, making several big saves, especially early on when the game was still in doubt.

O'Donoghue got the Wildcats started early on, scoring with 7:49 left in the first period on a wrist shot as he moved in from the blue line and clanged the puck off the crossbar and into the net.

O'Donoghue would strike again with 4:50 left in the period, picking up a loose puck in front for a 2-0 lead that the Wildcats would carry into the second period.

McLean helped the Wildcats maintain their lead with a great save while Lexington-Bedford was on a power play midway through the period and moments later Lagunilla would extend the Wildcats lead to 3-0 on a goal with 3:26 left in the period and that was the lead Wilmington would take into the third period.

The Wildcats were not about to let another lead slip away in this one as they quickly went about the business of putting the game away in the third period, with Dodge scoring consecutive goals, first with 8:42 left in the game and again with 3:29 left when he made a great play to put in a rebound over the fallen Lexington-Bedford goalie.

Jack Seibel would close out the scoring for the Wildcats on a goal with 1:15 left.

With the win, the Wildcats finished the regular season with a record of 16-7-4, tying them for third place in the Northeast American A Division of the Valley League. They will open the playoffs on Saturday at 1:00 against Woburn at the Breakaway Ice Center.

SQUIRT 1's

Wilmington Squirt Ones put together a pair of victories last weekend to wrap up the regular season and gear up for the playoffs.

On Saturday March 28 in Lawrence the Wildcats bested the Melrose Red Raiders 3-2 in a tense contest. Jack Farrell scored early for Wilmington at 2:36, after which Melrose found the far upper corner to knot the count at 1-1.

In the second period the Wildcats took the lead on a Cam Marzilli goal at 6:23, and settled for a 2-1 lead after two when a Matt Ardito short-handed bid was thwarted.

Michael Daniels added one of his first-minute-of-the-period goals at 22 seconds of the third. Dillon Bloom's big glove save at the nine minute mark got bigger when the Raiders scored on a power play at 9:49. The Wildcats hung on as Melrose pulled its goalie and stormed the net with an extra skater, and Wilmington secured the 3-2 win.

On Sunday March 29 in Tewksbury, the Wildcats roared loudly in an 8-1 defeat of Brookline. This one was in doubt only briefly when Brookline scored at 8:15 of the first period to tie the game at one. From then on it was all Wilmington, capped by a four goal third period.

The newly-formed line of Matt Ardito, Michel Daniels and Cam Gagnon exploded for all eight goals, including hat tricks by Ardito and Daniels and two by Gagnon. It all added up to a positive result to hopefully build on in the post-season.

PEE WEE 2's

The regular season came to a close on Sunday, as the Wilmington Youth Hockey Association PeeWee 2 team played Malden at the Breakaway Ice Center in Tewksbury. Max Churchill was in net as always, with Conor Peterson, Ryan Packer, Brian Dunfey, and Anthony Bowker on defense. Jason Davey skated at center between Brayden Sanborn and Will Alworth to start the game.

Malden was first on the board with a snap shot goal that picked a top corner of the net at about the four minute mark.

Wilmington quickly tied the game at one all when Colin Gates at the net front converted on a centering pass from Brendon George. The Wildcats killed off a late first period penalty that carried over to the start of the second.

Early in the second, Malden was penalized twice, but Wilmington couldn't score with the two man advantage. Midway through the game Malden took the lead again, but the 'Cats rallied to tie at 2-2 with just under a minute remaining in the second period.

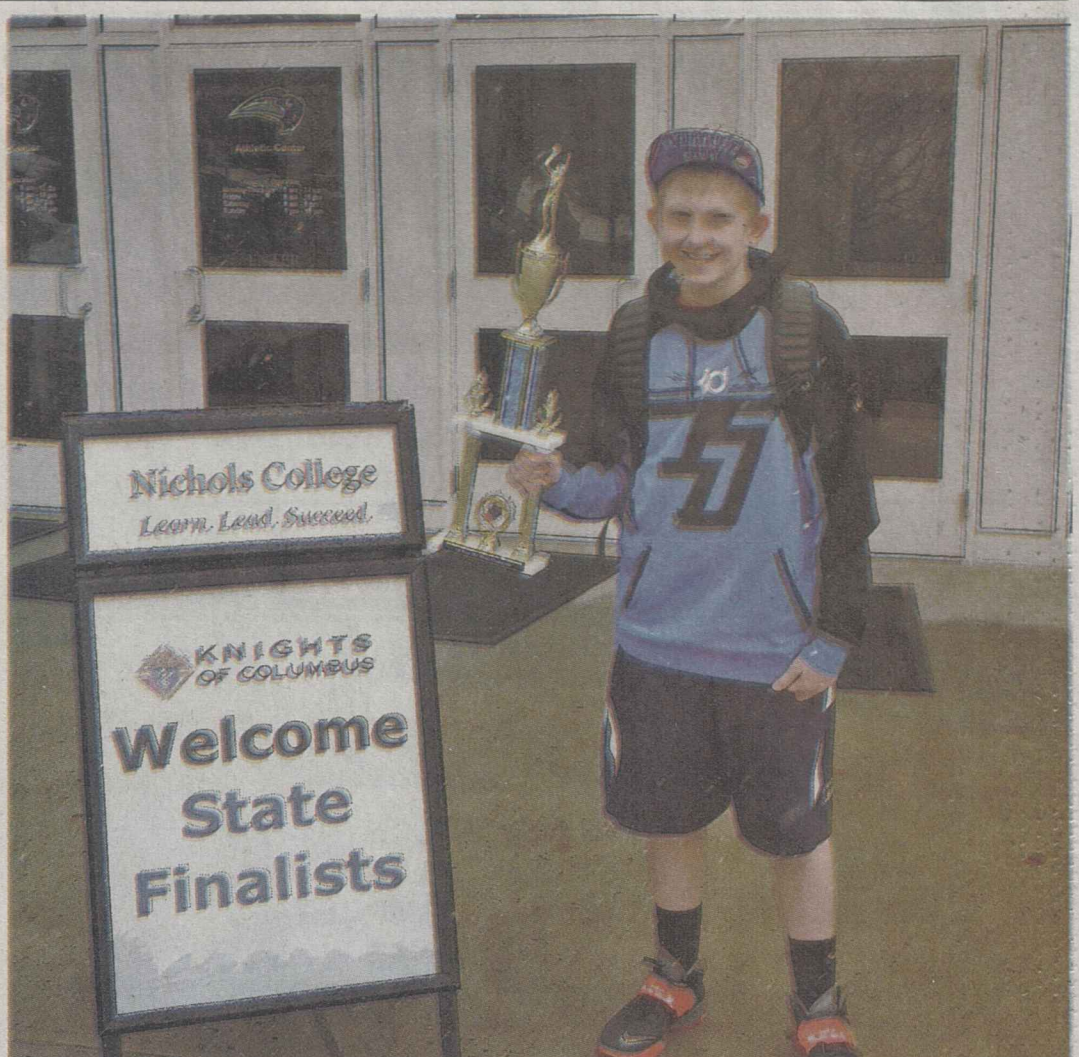

With Joseph Hansen centering Joseph Hartzell and Jake Glinner, the trio of forwards cycled the puck effectively in the offensive zone. Finally, Hansen knocked in the rebound of his own shot to even the score entering the third period.

Joseph Cornish shifted to defense and Anthony Bowker to forward, looking to jump start the attack. The pace was slowed by a series of penalties, and neither team could score on the power play. With less than five minutes remaining and matching penalties on the board, Malden scored on a net front scramble to go up 3-2.

Wilmington pulled the goalie for an extra attacker with well over two minutes remaining and the added pressure forced Malden to take yet another penalty, but with only 20 seconds remaining in the game.

Now skating six on four, the Wildcat's controlled the play and Brendon George found enough open ice to shoot in the tying goal with six seconds on the clock.

The regular season ended with a tie, but the next game will have to have a winner as the playoff format means win or go home.

Anthony DiSanto, of Tewksbury won the Knights of Columbus State Free Throw championship for 13-year-old boys this past weekend held at Nichols College in Dudley MA. DiSanto won the local Tewksbury contest, then the district contest in Andover, and then the regional contest in Reading, before heading to the state championship on March 28th. DiSanto attends the Wynn Middle school and played for the Tewksbury Youth Basketball Travel 7th grade White team this past season. (courtesy photo).

Woburn's Thifault volunteers for

Habitat for Humanity®

By GORDON VINCENT

While throngs of college students soaked up the sun in tropical latitudes, Woburn native Kevin Thifault spent his first college spring break working for Habitat for Humanity, the venerable volunteer agency that re-builds and remodels homes for those in need.

Thifault and his classmates from Providence College were sent to a small town in Western Pennsylvania, where they spent three days renovating a single-family home and another day building a ramp for an elderly resident at another home.

"It was a very satisfying experience," said Thifault, who is a freshman at Providence. "We got to meet the family (for whom they were renovating the house) on the last day, and they were so appreciative and so grateful."

About 130 students from Providence College volunteered to spend the week with Habitat for Humanity, the ecumenical Christian ministry founded in 1976. Habitat builds and rehabilitates simple, decent houses with the help of the homeowner families and other volunteers who work through more than 1,900 affil-ates worldwide.

The volunteers from Providence were dispersed to nine sites, including Kittanning, Pa., a town of about 4,000 which is about an hour northeast of Pittsburgh.

"It's such a small town, by the end of the week everyone knew who we were and what we were doing," Thifault said.

Volunteerism is nothing new to Thifault, a 2014 graduate of Woburn Memorial High who while in high school was involved with the Best Buddies program, which is a group that fosters interaction with students with disabilities. He was also a freshman mentor. An enthusiastic leader, he was also class president as a freshman, and treasurer as a junior.

At WMHS, Thifault also participated on the lacrosse, cross-country and indoor track teams, and was a member of the staff of the yearbook, of which his mother, Susan, is a staff adviser.

He is also known throughout Woburn for his work as a disc jockey. Thifault operates his own company, Good Vibrations, and has appeared at a number of community events, like the Woburn Lions Clambake, the Be Well Woburn Triathlon, and the Boys & Girls Club's Kick'n For Kids Road Race. The disc jockey gig is on hold while Thifault is in college, but he looks forward to resuming those efforts as part of his busy lifestyle.

"I definitely enjoyed working with things like Best Buddies and the yearbook, and we won a lot of awards (for the yearbook)," he said.

Of the several colleges that were under his consideration, he chose Providence, a decision he now says is the right one.

"I love the school, and I love the city," Thifault said. "It's definitely been a good fit for me."

Upon arrival at Providence, he wanted to continue his volunteerism, which

Movie Reviews

"Home" delightful

by Paul Feely

"HOME" IS AN ANIMATED COMEDY filled with laughs, heart and life lessons. Oh, voiced by the Big Bang Theory's Jim Parsons, buys wholeheartedly into the Boov philosophy of fleeing from danger, while the plucky Tip, voiced by Rihanna, is all for confronting whatever impedes her goal.

"HOME"

"Home" is an animated comedy filled with laughs, heart and life lessons.

The movie is about family, as well as finding the courage to stand up for what is right.

The Boov, an alien species that runs from trouble instead of facing it, invades Earth, moves all its inhabitants to Australia and takes over the rest of the planet.

They overlook one little girl, Tip, and with the help of a klutzy misfit Boov named Oh, she sets out to find her mom.

The laughs aren't because of what happens along the way, but in the bond that slowly forms between the girl and the alien.

Oh, voiced by "The Big Bang Theory's" Jim Parsons, buys wholeheartedly into the Boov philosophy of fleeing from danger, while the plucky Tip, voiced by Rihanna, is all for confronting whatever impedes her goal.

"Home" is aimed at youngsters, mainly those under 10. It's a silly movie created to entertain and drive home the importance of family.

The plot is easy to follow with no big twists or surprises.

The animation is colorful as various emotional situations cause Boovs to change colors. (Tip knows when Oh is lying, for example, because he turns green.)

It is the vocal artistry of Parsons, Rihanna and Steve Martin, as the self-important leader of the Boov, Captain Smek, who elevate the film.

While "Home" is aimed mainly for children, adults will enjoy the satire of what human essentials the Boov judge as worthless and useless and what they deem important to preserve.

"Home" is a bit repetitious at times, but thanks to its stars, it is an entertaining 90-plus minutes of laughter.

The best part of last year's "Divergent" was that the plot featured a social experiment of dividing people according to their natural virtues. The film, based on the popular young adult novel by Veronica Roth, earned points for its examination of individuality, diversity and expectations.

The character of Tris (Shailene Woodley) served as the lightning rod for those who rejected this system. She wasn't the strongest female hero to appear onscreen, but made a stand for what she believed.

In the sequel, "The Divergent Series: Insurgent," Tris is reduced to a bystander who occasionally gets to fight as part of an effort to open a box that holds the key to humanity's future.

At the end of the first film, Tris, and her sidekick Four (Theo James), foe Peter (Miles Turner) and brother Caleb (Ansel Elgort) were on the run. They end up in a hippie colony (run by Octavia Spencer) where love and peace are all that matter.

Then the screenplay shifts gear, morphing into a series of efforts to catch Tris because she's the key to opening the box. The fugitives make their way back to town and end up with the group known as Candor.

Thrown into the mix is a mysterious woman from Four's past - played by Naomi Watts - who could either be a help or hindrance for the group.

Director Robert Schwentke showcases a couple of big action scenes. Computer technology allows for visuals that look great. There's just nothing left when all the dust clears.

The action scenes aren't enough to distract from a script that is full of holes, illogical actions and a story that takes almost two hours to complete yet only moves things forward slightly. When the big finale comes, it's not exciting.

The biggest failing is how the character of Tris is reduced to supporting player. Even Theo James and Jai Courtney have more to do than Tris. At least their characters remain part of the main story.

Kate Winslet is far more interesting as the single-minded leader who wants to protect her divided world. She's a good contrast to what Watts brings to the production.

NO FOOLIN': CULVERT, KYLIE, COOLIDGE

Please check your local "Daily Times Chronicle" for daily updates.

NOT SO 'VERY SEXY' (WINCHESTER)

"As one resident put it, a culvert 'is not very sexy,'" notes the Winchester edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"Yet it has to have enough appeal to sway voters to pay extra taxes to install it underground at Skillings Field.

"The same is true of a soil remediation project at the same site, which the Board of Selectmen wants to do at the same time as the culvert project. They may not have the same appeal as a new school - in fact, they are dirty jobs, but the town has to do them. The trouble is, it does not have the revenue.

"Therefore, a special election has been scheduled for June 9 for residents to vote on a debt-exclusion override for the culvert, soil remediation, and possibly a new turf field for the baseball diamond area of the field (the selectmen have not yet decided on the number of questions).

"The appeal of laying a 7-foot by 15-foot box culvert (1,280-foot long) under the field is the mitigation of flooding which has caused $25 million in property damage since 1996. The culvert is one of eight in-town projects and three out-of-town projects designed to lessen flooding along the Aberjona River.

"Millions have already been invested in this program, but the full benefit will not be realized unless the entire program is affected. 'This is critical,' water resource engineer Jake SanAntonio said, 'for the town center and the north half of the town.' The program will not end flooding, but, he said, it should keep the high school and Muraco School out of the floodplain.

"The town does not have any choice about the soil project. The DEP has mandated that the town clean up any area which was contaminated over a couple of centuries by polluted water, tannery waste, dumps, and ash used as fill..."

UNDERSTATEMENT OF THE WEEK (TEWKSBURY)

Can you find it?

"Kylie Sedgwick wasn't planning on such adventurous and worthwhile time off before college," notes the Tewksbury "Town Crier."

"While her friends were beginning their 2014 fall semester, she was a 2015 spring admit to the University of Southern California and had to decide how to spend the time in between ... 'I liked seeing new things and reaching beyond the boundaries of Massachusetts,' she said. Eighteen-year-old Kylie wanted to combine travel with helpful and meaningful work. After much research she discovered Carpe Diem Education which offers gap semesters - a purposeful break between high school and college..."

"Kylie chose a program in East Africa and proposed a 12-week experience abroad to her parents.

"When Kylie mentioned she wanted to go to Africa it was a bit of a shock to us," said Toby Sedgwick, Kylie's mother...

"Kylie departed mid-September for the 30-hour trip to East Africa, where she joined 10 other students from around the country. Led by two overseas educators, the group made a loop through East Africa, meeting locals, learning the culture and participating in service projects...For Kylie, the trip to East Africa reaffirmed what she wanted out of her college education. Her current major is Policy Planning and Development on the non-profit track..."

"This is the 22nd year they have earned the honor of representing the Commonwealth of Massachusetts at the National Science Olympiad Competition, which will take place at the University of Nebraska - Lincoln on May 15-16..."

"This year's team is led by Head Coach Karawan Meade, a former team member, with the support of Coolidge science teachers John McCarthy and Jerald Coyne, and a team of volunteer coaches who are parents, teachers, community members, and high school student team alumni..."

SPORTS SHORTS

•Middlesex East Sports Weekly Trivia: Possibly the most common last name in the Baseball Hall of Fame is Robinson. Can you give the four first names of the people named Robinson?
Answer appears elsewhere in this column.

•The Great Northeast Athletic Conference announced their weekly honors and Rivier baseball juniors Taylor Black and Tewksbury's Jon Chotkowski were selected as the conference's Player and Pitcher of the Week.

Player of the Week - Taylor Black, Junior from West Springfield, Mass.

Junior Taylor Black (West Springfield, Mass.) helped the Rivier baseball team to two wins in a three game week, hitting .538 (7-for-13) with two homers, six RBI and a perfect fielding percentage at shortstop. In a 13-6 win over Eastern Nazarene, Black went 4-for-5 and belted his first home run of the season with four RBI. He followed that up with a 3-for-4 showing against Gallaudet, in which he hit his second homer in a 4-2 win.

Black is the second Raider to be selected as GNAC Baseball Player of the Week. Senior David Cusack (Newburyport, Mass.) was honored back in Week One of the Weekly Reports.

Pitcher of the Week - Jon Chotkowski, Junior from Tewksbury, Mass.

Junior Jon Chotkowski (Tewksbury, Mass.) earned his first win of the season in the team's 4-2 win over Gallaudet on Saturday night. The southpaw tossed four innings of relief allowing just one run on five hits with four strikeouts.

•The Rivier University Softball team wrapped up their annual spring break trip to South Carolina with a pair of games against Saint Elizabeth College and Randolph College. Rivier was able to earn the win in the first game as they outscored Saint Elizabeth 6-1. However the team will travel home with a loss in the nightcap as they fell to Randolph, 6-0.

Game One: Rivier University 6, Saint Elizabeth College 1 (Final)

The Raiders earned win number five of the South Carolina trip as they defeated Saint Elizabeth College, 6-1 behind a strong pitching performance from junior Libby Sammon (Rockland, Mass.). The right hander dazzled the opposition as she allowed just one run on six hits with eight strikeouts in her complete game victory. Sammon is now 2-0 to start the season.

Game Two: Randolph College 6, Rivier University 0 (Final)

It was a tough task for the Raiders in their southern trip finale as they could only manage just three hits off of Randolph starter Hannah Winfree.

Freshman Jordan Parece (Nashua, N.H.) and Emily Knoop (Tewksbury, Mass.) were the only two starters to record hits while classmate Kelli Jerome (Leicester, Vt.) came off the bench and added a single.

Rivier leaves South Carolina with a 5-3 overall record.

•Trailing by one in the ninth, the UMass Lowell baseball team squandered an opportunity to score with the bases loaded and one out in the ninth, falling to Bryant 7-6 at the New England Baseball Complex.

The River Hawks (3-10) dropped their fourth straight game by one run as Matt Albanese and Brandon Bingel each hit two home runs to rally the Bulldogs (3-11) back from a 6-2 seventh inning deficit. Bryant scored three in the seventh before Bingel hit the go-ahead two-run shot in the eighth.

"We need to play 27 outs and finish games," said Head Coach Ken Harring. "We played better baseball today, but we need to play a complete ballgame. We are right at the cusp. Someone needs to make a play, make a pitch, or get a big hit. Someone will step up. We are close."

Freshman Andrew Ryan (Rochester, Mass.) struck out five over six innings while surrendering two earned runs on five hits but didn't pick up the decision despite a four run lead when he exited.

Down a run heading into the fourth, the River Hawks put their first two batters on as Ian Strom (Hopedale, Mass.) and Tyler Noe (Lynnfield, Mass.) each drew a walk from Bryant southpaw Jack Patterson. The Bulldogs turned to righty James Karinchak who gave up a single to right field by Brice

UNH alumnus Ryan Pitts, Medal of Honor recipient is Commencement Speaker

The ninth living recipient of the Medal of Honor for his combat actions in Afghanistan, former U.S. Army staff sergeant Ryan Pitts '13 will deliver this year's commencement address on Saturday, May 16, 2015 at the University of New Hampshire.

Pitts, a former active-duty Army Staff Sergeant who now works at Oracle Corp. in Burlington, as a business development consultant, was awarded the medal on July 21, 2014, for his actions July 13, 2008, during the Battle of Wanat. As part of the 173rd Airborne Brigade, Staff Sgt. Pitts served as a forward observer. Pitts is the third recipient of the Medal of Honor from the 2nd Battalion, 503rd Infantry Regiment. He was medically discharged in 2009.

A 2013 graduate of the university's business program in Manchester and a member of the UNH Alumni Association advisory board, Pitts graduated summa cum laude, with a near-perfect GPA. Named a Presidential Scholar, he also received the Brennan Award for character, perseverance and academic excellence and one of the UNH Awards of Excellence, as well as several student leadership prizes.

While at Manchester he gave the college's honors convocation address, confessing that he had always planned to attend college following his military service, but was "scared about returning to school. I was worried I would fail after an almost six-year break from academic pursuits." Born in Lowell, Mass., he moved with his family to rural Mont Vernon, N.H. and attended Souhegan High School, where he described himself as an "unfocused" student who never really applied himself.

•Need some help with the trivia question? One is Frank Robinson.

•Eight River Hawks earned All-New England status as the UMass Lowell men's track and field team turned in a strong showing at the 47th annual NEICAAA New England Championships at the Track and Tennis Center at Boston University.

UMass Lowell, earning a total of 24.5 points, finished 11th in a field of 33 colleges spanning all three NCAA divisions. Northeastern finished first with 161 points. Rhode Island was second, Southern Connecticut State finished third.

"This was a nice bounce back after the conference meet," said Head Coach Gary Gardner. "The team competed really hard."

Four seniors, a junior, a sophomore and two freshmen grabbed All-New England honors.

Freshman Paul Hogan (Burlington, Mass.) turned in his strongest showing of the year in the mile. Hogan finished sixth with a time of four-minutes, 10.45-seconds. He was just three seconds behind the winning time and earned All-New England status.

"There is still more to learn, but he's learning with every race," said Gardner. "Three of his four races in the indoor season have been personal bests, in the other one we ran a tactical race."

Two River Hawks earned All-New England status in the 500 meter dash. Freshman Marcus Duncan clocked in at 1:04.99. It was a second and a half off the winning time and good enough for fifth place. Senior Richard Kirby (Tewksbury, Mass.) placed seventh with a time of 1:05.38.

"(Duncan) is a real good competitor and a piece that we can build around for the future," said Gardner. "That's (Kirby's) first indoor All-New England and it sets him up well for the outdoor season."

Senior Cameron Mitchell (Wakefield, Mass.) finished seventh in the 60 meter hurdles. His time was 8.34-seconds. Mitchell was the picture of consistency. He was a personal best of 8.32-seconds, Friday, in the preliminary and 8.39, early Saturday, in the semifinal.

"He's found his groove," said Gardner. "He's really consistent and is in good position to carry that into the outdoor season."

Women Celebrating returns to Hilton April 8

At the Ballroom of the Woburn Hilton

The Reading-North Chamber of Commerce hosts its 8th Annual Women Celebrating event on Wednesday April 8, 2015, from 6:30 - 9:30 pm at the Ballroom of the Woburn Hilton, located at 2 Forbes Road in Woburn. This year promises to be the best yet, featuring over 35 local exhibitors and restaurants from Reading, North Reading, and surrounding towns.

"This annual event is a celebration of our vendors and is also a blast," said Chamber President Lisa DeLeo. "Women Celebrating allows local businesses to be showcased in a creative and fun setting, while offering all who attend a fun and festive night out."

Women Celebrating 2015 highlights include the popular women's and men's fashion shows, featuring styles and accessories from Sterlingwear of Boston and Izzy's Boutique. GoodHearts Children's Shop will feature a children's fashion show to kick off the evening. For the runway, Axle Color Studio and Heavenly Hair will create expert hairstyles for local women models. Back by popular demand is the male fashion show, featuring outerwear from Sterlingwear of Boston with an All-American theme. This year's event will include entertainment by Music on the Move's DJ Jason Cheverie and photography will be by JBug

Images LLC.

In addition to the staged events, exhibitors will offer product samples, discount coupons and demonstrations. Check out the many raffle prizes, including a case of assorted wines, a Party on the Patio for ten from Bertucci's, a Chalk Painting party from Brissonté Gifts and Home Décor, tickets to Stoneham Theatre paired with a restaurant gift certificate, gift baskets, accessories, beauty products and more. A selfie-station will be set up to capture the moments from throughout the evening.

Food for the event will be provided by local eateries Bertucci's, Sweet K Cookies, Horseshoe Grille, Ryers, Sanborn Place, Home Care & Day Services, Oye's Restaurant, Laurie's 9:09 and more. Specialty martinis and a cash bar will also be featured.

Premier sponsors of this event are Brissonté Gifts and Home Decor, Burbank YMCA, The Savings Bank, Sterlingwear of Boston, Reading Gymnastics Academy and Sanborn Place, Home Care & Day Services. Gold sponsors are The Jewelry Vault, Lumina Salon, Goodhearts Children's Shop, K.S. Financial, AXLE Color Studio, Izzy's Boutique and Heavenly Hair.

"So many businesses get involved on many levels from sponsoring the event, being a vendor or by providing a raffle item," said Chamber Executive Director Lisa Egan. "We are grateful to our sponsors who make this event possible. Their support is instrumental in the growing success of Women Celebrating and we appreciate their continued commitment to the Chamber and the local community."

Tickets to Women Celebrating are $25 in advance and $30 at the door. Tickets are available for sale at the Jewelry Vault in North Reading and RMLD, Lumina Salon and The Hitching Post in Reading, or on our website at www.readingnreadinchamber.com. You may also buy tickets by contacting Lisa Egan at legan@rnrcchamber.com or by calling 978.664.5060.

A summer employment program for teens

Parker River National Wildlife Refuge looking for youth help

Parker River National Wildlife Refuge is seeking recruits for its Youth Conservation Corps (YCC) program - a summer employment program for teens.

Four positions will be available this year; two for boys and two for girls. Participants will work 40 hours per week for eight weeks and earn the current minimum wage ($9.00/hr.). The employment period will be from June 29 - August 21, 2015. Candidates must commit to the full eight week program.

The objectives of YCC, a nationwide program, are threefold: to accomplish needed conservation work on public land, to provide gainful employment for 15 through 18 year olds of all social, economic, ethnic and racial backgrounds, and to develop an understanding and appreciation of the nation's natural environment and heritage.

This year's crew will work on such projects as boardwalk repairs, brushing trails, erecting fences and assisting with the stations biological program. To be eligible for the YCC Program, enrollees must be at least 15 but not have reached 19 years of age during the term of employment, be a U.S. resident, have a Social Security number, and possess a desire and ability to work outdoors.

Applications and information may be obtained at Parker River National Wildlife Refuge, 6 Plum Island Turnpike Newburyport, MA 01950, or at most local high school guidance departments. Office hours at the Refuge are 8:30 am to 4:00pm, Monday through Friday. The main refuge phone number is (978) 465-5753.

Completed applications must be received at the refuge office no later than 4:00 pm on April 29, 2015. Selection will be made by random drawing and notification of participants will be completed by May 5, 2015.

angles-off in that direction. Double doors open into the window-bright room that could be a bedroom, home office or study.

Continue to the left and you step into the kitchen; going straight ahead brings you to the vaulted great room, after passing the bedroom and bathroom on the right. Linen and towel closets are tucked into alcoves there.

Light washes into the vaulted great room through wide windows that fill most of the rear wall, plus the slender windows flanking the gas fireplace. Sliding glass doors in the dining area open onto a wide patio.

Standing at the kitchen sink, you can look out across the raised eating bar into the great room, keep your eye on the patio, or enjoy watching seasonal changes outside. All appliances are built in, and a roomy walk-in pantry fills one corner. Laundry appliances are stacked right around the corner in the Fern View's pass-through utility room, which provides access to the garage.

The owners' suite is surprisingly luxurious for a home this size, boasting a spa tub, oversized shower and dual lav.

U.S. homes purchased in February are most in the last 20 months

More Americans signed contracts to buy homes in February, evidence that the spring buying season could open strong after sluggish sales for much of the winter.

The National Association of Realtors said Monday that its seasonally adjusted pending home sales index climbed 3.1 percent to 106.9 last month, the highest reading since June 2013.

Buying activity jumped in the Midwest and West, while dipping slightly in the Northeast and South. The gains suggest that housing should overcome the recent hurdles of freezing weather and blistering snowstorms, as both buyers and potentially sellers return to the market.

Pending sales are a barometer of future purchases. A one- to two-month lag usually exists between a contract and a completed sale.

The upturn suggests a solid spring sales rebound, after a lackluster winter. But unlike last year when sales fell, the spring buying season opens after more than a year of robust hiring that has pulled the unemployment rate down to 5.5 percent, the lowest level in nearly seven years.

"What's different this time is that the surge in the pace of payroll growth means that the pool of prospective homebuyers is now rising more rapidly than at any time since the crash," said Ian Shepherdson, chief economist at Pantheon Macroeconomics.

Existing homes sold at an annual pace of 4.88 million in February, slightly below last year's levels, according to the Realtors. Prospective buyers were finding slim pickings as the supply of homes was just 4.6 months, compared to five full months a year ago and an average closer to six months in healthy housing markets.

But solid hiring over the past year and historically low mortgage rates may help to ease the affordability pressures from tight supplies.

Average 30-year fixed rates were 3.69 percent last week, according to the mortgage giant Freddie Mac. That average has plunged from a 52-week high of 4.41 percent, a sharp decrease that makes it easier to purchase more expensive homes.

Similarly, job gains should give consumers more financial flexibility to buy homes.

Employers have added 3.3 million jobs over the past 12 months, including 295,000 jobs in February. That rapid clip of hiring has caused the unemployment rate to tumble to 5.5 percent from 6.7 percent. As the total number of paychecks have increased in the economy, more buyers should be able to afford a home, economists say.

The one missing piece in the housing rebound remains wage growth.

Earnings have risen at drastically slower rate than home prices, putting many houses out of reach financially.

Over the past two years, homes nationwide outpaced wage growth by a 13-to-1 ratio, according to RealtyTrac, the housing data provider. Home prices have risen 17 percent since the middle of 2012 when the market bottomed out, while median wages have risen just 1.3 percent, RealtyTrac said.

But that might prove to be a positive, since modest wage gains should put a cap on how high prices can go and improve affordability in the coming years.

"Those markets with the biggest disconnect between price growth and wage growth during the last two years are most likely to see plateauing home prices in 2015 until wages catch up," said Daren Blomquist, a vice president at RealtyTrac.

Fern View is spacious while still economical

Open and welcoming, the Fern View's front porch spans the front facade of this contemporary ranch-style home. Slender posts provide graceful accents.

Having a basically rectangular footprint makes this home economical to build, heat and maintain. For young families, this makes a stunning starter home. For empty nesters it promises lower maintenance chores and costs without any downsizing of life styles. It could be furnished with three bedrooms, or have two bedrooms and a study/home office, whichever suits.

Light spills into the vaulted entry though a sidelight plus a row of panes near the top of the door. A coat closet is on the left, just before the entry hall
